'Banks Out of Mould Of Capones'

OTTAWA (CP)—"Capable, decisive, egocentric, intolerant and ruthless."

"He is of the stuff of the Capones and the Hoffas of whom the dictators throughout history, from the earliest times to the totalitarians Hitler and Stalin, are prototypes."

"He is a bully, cruel, dishonest, greedy, power-hungry, contemptuous of the law."

The words are from the report of Mr. Justice T. G. Norris on his inquiry into shipping strike on the Great Lakes.

TO FOUND UNION

He applies his scathing appraisal to Hal C. Banks, president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.), a burly waterfront figure who came to Canada in 1949 to break one union and found another. (See story, Page 5.)

Reported Mr. Justice Norris: "It should always be remembered that this strike, all this lawlessness... is part of an irresponsible campaign to maintain one rapacious and violent."

Comment, Mr. Banks?

'Are You Kidding?'

MONTREAL (CP)—Hal C. Banks, president of the Seafarers' International Union, declined to comment Monday on the findings of the Norris report on lake shipping.

"Are you kidding?" said Mr. Banks when asked by reporters if he would comment on the basis of a report covering the main recommendations of Mr. Justice T. G. Norris.

Mr. Banks said he will have no comment until he has read the report. He had no indication of when that might be.

Mr. Banks was questioned by reporters as he left a court where he was facing a contempt charge arising out of the SIU's long dispute with the Upper Lakes Shipping Company. The case is to continue today.

Banks Still Backed By U.S. Seafarers

WASHINGTON (CP)—United States maritime unions will continue to support Hal C. Banks, a top official of the AFL-CIO Maritime Trades Department said Monday.

Four Found

Whistle Saves Hikers

HANEY (CP)—Four hikers lost in rugged Garibaldi Park were reported found shortly after noon Monday.

The message was received at civil defence headquarters in this Fraser Valley community. It came in a walkie-talkie report from one of the three ground search parties. All were reported well.

COMB BURN

The ground parties had combed dense bush and trackless mountains since Sunday for three University of B.C. doctors and a nurse.

They were Dr. Basil Dunell, 40; Dr. John Coope, 31; Dr. Lionel Harrison and Judith Orr. All were from Vancouver.

SAVED BY WHISTLE

A London bobby's whistle led searchers to the four. Dr. Dunell said he always took a whistle with him while hiking and when they realized that searchers would be looking for them they decided to blow it every 15 minutes.

"We were quite excited when there was a reply to the whistle," he said.

TREMENDOUS JOB

McGavin said he is sure Hall will deal adequately with these points.

"We intend to support Banks right down the line. We believe Banks has done a tremendous job in Canada on behalf of maritime workers."

TO AMERICANS

The Norris commission findings are being brought to the attention of U.S. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz and George Meany, AFL-CIO president. A labor department spokesman said that because of the U.S. railway strike threat, both Meany and Wirtz would be too busy to concentrate on the Canadian problem for some weeks.

Socreds Keep Columbia

Social Credit won about 40 per cent of the votes Monday when railway telegrapher Frank Greenwood, 42, retained the sparsely-settled Columbia riding for the government in a provincial election.

Premier Bennett called it a "landslide victory" but an NDP member of Parliament in Ottawa issued charges of intimidation during the campaign.

With 23 of the 26 polls counted, Mr. Greenwood had 1,087 votes, Dr. Alvin Trott of the Progressive Conservatives 657, Liberal candidate Robert Keenleyside 623 and Robert Harris of the NDP 578. A total of 4,522 voters was eligible.

STANDINGS GIVEN

The result leaves B.C. Legislature standings at Social Credit 31, NDP 16 and Liberals five.

"The people in the historic riding of Columbia where the hydro-electric policies of the government were under test, criticism and attack gave the Social Credit government a landslide victory," Premier Bennett beamed.

"I am very humble and very pleased that the election gave us this result."

Premier Bennett also praised the Social Credit organization for withstanding "a terrific attack without parallel in the history of the province."

Fingered by Fate

Stamp Box Puts Bite On Ferry Passenger

An American sailor from Seattle probably will never forget his weekend ferry trip to Victoria—after spending the cruise with his finger stuck in a Canadian stamp machine.

Alex "Ding" Bell, a clerk at the Victoria Post Office, helped free the sailor's little finger from the machine after the CPR's Princess Marguerite tied up at her berth here in Inner Harbor on Saturday.

First Time

"If the boat is rolling the right way, we've had a fair amount of trouble with the stamp machines but this is the first time anyone has caught his finger in one of them. I didn't think it could be done," said Mr. Bell.

It seems the sailor had bought some picture post cards to mail to his friends from Victoria and that he couldn't get either the stamps or his quarter back from the machine.

Stayed There

He reached his little finger up the coin return slot, and there it stayed. By the time the ferry arrived in Victoria, anxious crewmen equipped with crowbars and other tools had tried in vain to get the stamp machine open.

Mr. Bell showed the crewmen which screws to remove to get the box apart, and the finger finally slipped out, mighty sore, but apparently undamaged.

To Purser

It was not known whether the sailor ever did get his stamps or his quarter back, but when Mr. Bell left the boat with the stamp machine under his arm the sailor was seen heading for the purser's office.

Only Step to Schism Chinese Warned

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet and Chinese delegates plodded into their second week. Each side apparently was determined to force the other to break them off.

Izvestia elaborated on charges contained in the Soviet Communist party's open letter published Saturday.

It said Red China is only one step from a "schism of the world Communism movement and the creation of a new international Communist centre."

The paper said Peking is trying to find allies among the non-white nations on the basis of "the opposition of the colored peoples and the white race and the demarcation of national and continental lines."

It said some nationalist leaders in newly-independent countries are inciting their peoples against the Soviet Union as well as the West by "inculcating them with hostility toward white people."

DRIVE POINT HOME

It said the "modern schismatics"—the Chinese—"are driving home to the peoples of Asia and Africa that the West remains the West and that white people remain white people."

The Soviet Communist party's weekend statement accused the Chinese of attempting to split the Communist world.

TALKS BREAK UP?

The violence of the attack gave rise to a spate of rumors in Western circles that the talks had broken up. Some sources reported the Chinese were packing their bags after being rebuffed on a demand for Premier Khrushchev's resignation.

Second Trans-Canada

Gaglardi Ottawa-Bound For Highway Parley

Highways Minister Gaglardi said Monday he expects to go to Ottawa shortly to discuss the possibility of a second Trans-Canada Highway with federal officials.

He said he had received a letter from federal Works Minister Deschatelets suggesting a conference and had telegraphed his acceptance of the proposal.

He expects the federal minister to set the date. Mr. Gaglardi said he was not optimistic over the possibility that Ottawa would enter into another 50-50 cost-sharing formula with the provinces for a second route.

"But I'll be in there fighting for whatever we can get," he added.

OTTAWA (CP)—A statement about requests for a second Trans-Canada highway route will be made by Works Minister Deschatelets today or Wednesday, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Monday.

'China of West' to Ignore Test-Ban

PARIS—France will remain the "Communist China" of the West in refusing to accept any nuclear test ban agreement which may be reached by the U.S., Britain and the Soviet Union, an informed source says here. (See story Page 3.)

This was believed to have been the gist of a 45-minute interview between President de Gaulle and Soviet ambassador Sergei Vinogradov on the eve of the Moscow test-ban talks. Vinogradov requested the appointment on his return from Moscow, where the Big Three began negotiations Monday.

"There will be no change in the French position on a nuclear test ban, even if there is an agreement in Moscow," the source said. "Gen. de Gaulle has made it clear that France will accept a test ban only as part of a general disarmament treaty."

The break between the Soviet Union and Red China has strengthened French determination to go ahead with development of a hydrogen bomb.

"Since Moscow can no longer offer the slightest assurance that the Chinese Communists will accept test ban, we feel free to carry on our policy no matter what the other Western nations feel," the source said.

There was a suggestion here

Vinogradov was merely confirming the French position for use as a convenient escape in negotiating with the West.

Soviet test ban negotiators have repeatedly denounced French policy as a ruse to continue Western testing.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin, spokesman for his government in much of last year's frustrating Geneva debates, declared on May 9, 1962: "The Soviet Union will not sign any treaty to which France is not a party. The Soviet Union cannot let an ally of the United States and the United Kingdom continue testing when others have stopped."

Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's expressed willingness to resume discussion of test suspension, it was wryly suggested here, may stem from the conviction that France is no longer a Western ally. (Los Angeles Times)

Esquimalt

CITIZENS WIN BATTLE

By MIKE GADSBY

Esquimalt council last night turned down the controversial Rockheights zoning bylaw change, but not before some bitter words were exchanged between leaders of the issue's two opposing camps.

In a last-ditch effort to encourage council to approve a bylaw change which would allow construction of a garden apartment development in Rockheights, Hummel and Warren, solicitors for the project's planner, had some biting words for those who attended a public hearing to protest the zone change.

"The question simply appears to be," a letter said, "whether to bow to an unruly mob whose leaders quite obviously do not understand the democratic process and of a public meeting were quite unable to attack the proposed bylaw on anything but an emotional level."

Ernest Camels, who only minutes before had been sworn in as a council member, demanded Hummel and Warren apologize.

"They have no right to call us an unruly mob," said Mr. Camels. "It sounds like a dictatorship when people have things pushed down their throats the way they have tried to do it to Rockheights residents."

Seven Albanians Die In Russia Air Crash

MUNICH (UPI)—Seven Albanians, including the wife and two children of the Albanian ambassador to Communist China, have been killed in a plane crash while flying from Peking to Albania, Tirana radio announced late Monday.

It said they were aboard a Soviet-built Tu-104 airliner that crashed Saturday near the Soviet city of Irkutsk in Southern Siberia, according to Radio Free Europe monitors here.

The broadcast did not say how many others might have been killed.

It listed the Albanian dead only as Mrs. Malie, wife of the Albanian ambassador, and their two children; Drago Biliqi, a poet; Hafer Baklanaj, a journalist, and his wife and child.

He's Tickled Pink But She Sees Red

LONDON (Reuters)—The wife of an army sergeant was granted a divorce Monday after she told a court her husband made her tickle his feet almost every night for hours at a time.

The judge said the husband, Sgt. Robert Lines, 25, threatened not to talk to his 18-year-old wife, Jean, unless she continued to tickle him.

Lines began his demands one week after the marriage. Sometimes he required his young wife also to tickle the top of his head and his back.

The judge granted Mrs. Lines a divorce on the grounds of cruelty.

lent man, Banks, in power as a dictator.

It seems doubtful that any individual heretofore has been blistered by a federal inquiry in so vigorous a manner.

The theme recurs continually throughout most of the 275,000-word document.

The Banks history starts quietly enough as recorded by the report. The American citizen, who has been refused Canadian citizenship, was born in Iowa 54 years ago and came to Canada from the SIU of North America.

NOTABLE SPONSORS

He was to help break the old Canadian Seamen's Union, tinged with communism. Sponsors included shipping firms and some prominent labor leaders.

He applied for landed immigrant status in 1952 and subsequently was ordered deported on grounds he had been convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude. His 1954 appeal was allowed.

REJECTED AGAIN

In 1958, he applied again for citizenship and again his application was rejected despite support from figures of status including Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labor Congress.

The citizenship court judge found Mr. Banks had not behaved as the average Canadian "would, should or does."

CONVICTED TWICE

Mr. Justice Norris notes that Banks in 1939 was convicted in the U.S. of issuing bad checks and served 3 1/2 years of a 14-year sentence.

He was given a full and unconditional pardon in 1951 on grounds he had been rehabilitated but Mr. Justice Norris says "Banks' propensity for violence is in my opinion amply established" by various pieces of evidence.

'ABLE, INGENIOUS'

At one point, the justice observes: "Banks is very able and very ingenious. As in the case with every dictator, he is lawless and is prepared to use any weapon to gain his ends."

Runaway Charged

A 13-year-old Victoria boy who left July 6 because he could not stand his home and hitchhiked to Toronto has been charged with vagrancy. Welfare authorities likely will handle the case.

A 16-year-old companion, with whom the boy shared $5 on departure, is being returned to Victoria. The two were taken to police by the 13-year-old's sister, who lives near Toronto.

Your Good Health

Secondary Glaucoma Has Specific Cause

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD.

Dear Dr. Molner: Will you define secondary glaucoma? Is there any other kind except acute glaucoma?—E.M.L.

Primary glaucoma means that it may result from causes which we cannot ascertain, or may, for example, be congenital. Just glaucoma, in other words.

Secondary glaucoma, on the other hand, is a result of some other eye condition—cataract, tumor or the like.

In either case, pressure builds up inside the eyeball, and this continued pressure hardens it and in time destroys sight by causing atrophy of the optic nerve.

JUST THE SAME

Glaucoma can be either acute or chronic. There may be a rapid rise in pressure, or it may be slow and subtle, but it remains dangerous just the same.

All the individual can do is to have the eyes tested from time to time. This is not a difficult thing to do. A small instrument called a tonometer is brought into contact with the eye.

The tonometer can often detect the problem before the patient has become aware of symptoms. Blurred vision, pain in the eyes, headache, colored "halos" around lights at night are among the signs.

Once the increased pressure has been recognized, treatment should be instituted. Obviously, it is aimed at reducing the interior pressure. Medications help. Diet and restriction of tobacco, alcohol and nervous tension are important.

In some cases eye surgery is the effective way to relieve the pressure. Surgery is invariably necessary in acute glaucoma.

Dear Dr. Molner: My little girl had chicken pox and it left quite a few scars and holes in her face. Can anything be done? Will they fade? She is only two. Is there any kind of medication I can use to make them fade?—MRS. C.W.

Yes, they'll fade naturally and probably won't bother her at all by the time she's in high school. There's nothing for you to do now except wait and not worry. They will get smaller. If (which is doubtful) any of the pox marks are disturbing 10 or 15 years from now, a dermatologist can make them nearly undetectable. But don't do anything now. Wait and see.

NOTE TO A.B.: Some interruption of menstrual periods is not unusual in early teens.

When the lapse continues for several years, consult a gynecologist. Certain endocrine disorders could ultimately cause sterility unless treated.

French Leave?

MONTREAL (CP)—A Montreal man has written President de Gaulle asking for "repatriation" to France similar to that granted French citizens in Algeria after its independence.

Gerald Boldtalle, a writer, said he is a descendant of French settlers who came to New France in 1670 "before ceding of the territory to England — and thus I am neither more nor less French than other settlers to whom you recently accorded the right of repatriation."

Future Plans

Mac Asked To Say Yes or No

LONDON (UPI) — The Conservative Party rank-and-file urged Harold Macmillan Monday night to spell out his plans — whether he will stay on as prime minister or step down in the face of mounting opposition over Britain's sex-and-security scandals.

Macmillan, however, was expected to hold off the decision pending outcome of the Moscow talks on a nuclear test ban. If America, Russia and Britain reach agreement, he may want to stay on for a possible summit conference.

17-MAN EXECUTIVE

The issue of Macmillan's possible resignation was understood to have been the main topic at a meeting between the 65-year-old prime minister and the 17-man executive board of the 1922 committee of Conservative back-benchers.

The committee wanted Macmillan to make a clear-cut statement to all the party back-benchers before Parliament adjourns for the summer.

A majority of the back-benchers want him to quit early enough to give the party a "new look" leadership for the elections.

Nasser Sees Missile Test

CAIRO (Reuters) — President Nasser watched a successful launching of a "ground-to-air anti-aircraft missile" Monday, Cairo Radio said.

On July 21, 1962, Egypt launched four "entirely Egyptian-made" one-stage rockets. It is expected a "specialized" rocket, probably for research into the stratosphere, will be launched soon.

Optimistic Start

Nikita Laughs Loudly

MOSCOW (AP)—Joking and bubbling with enthusiasm, Premier Khrushchev launched the Kremlin talks on a nuclear test-ban agreement Monday in a 3½-hour conference with special American and British envoys. He jovially suggested signing the agreement "right away."

Red China, whose ideological feud with Khrushchev has reached the point of a split, took angry note of the talks. A Peking broadcast charged that the negotiations were based on the "utter hypocrisy" of U.S. President Kennedy's "strategy for peace."

IGNORED PEKING

By entering the talks with U.S. State Undersecretary W. Averell Harriman and Britain's Science Minister Lord Hailsham, the Kremlin ignored Peking's latest claims that Communists cannot negotiate with "U.S. imperialism."

The Kremlin's negotiations with the Western allies are centered on a limited agreement banning tests in the air, space and under water. Both the Communist and Western sides expressed optimism.

Khrushchev was in a jovial mood from the first instant Harriman walked through the door of the big conference room in the Kremlin.

"You have started counting your years backwards," the Soviet leader told the 71-year-old Harriman, a former ambassador to Moscow.

"You, too," replied Harriman.

"I started doing that a long time ago," Khrushchev said. He is 69.

Press photographers were allowed into the room before the talks actually got under way. Harriman and Hailsham insisted that for picture-taking Khrushchev should stand between them.

MOCK DESPAIR

Doing so, Khrushchev threw up his hands in mock despair and said in a loud laugh: "I'm surrounded by imperialists."

Harriman has said he expected the conference to last about 10 days.

At the Kremlin's request, the U.S. and Britain have agreed that the conference should be carried on in secret.

Reporters saw Harriman and Hailsham come out of the Kremlin in apparent good spirits.

INVOLVES INSPECTION

Both sides here have agreed that it is possible to ban tests in the air, space and under water. This would involve the inspection inside Russia which Khrushchev finds to his distaste.

But Khrushchev has tied a string to such an agreement. He said in East Berlin earlier this month that he would be willing to sign a limited test-ban treaty if the West will sign a non-aggression pact.

The Urge Is There

PREMIER KHRUSHCHEV often does the unexpected but his latest surprise will be more welcome than otherwise. He has turned up in person to take a hand in the test-ban talks now getting under way in Moscow.

This was a conference to be held at a level just short of a summit meeting, although with the negotiators bearing weighty authority to try and come to agreement. That the Soviet leader should intervene himself indicates the degree of importance he attaches to the talks.

His presence is all the more significant in view of his pointed absence from the recent Sino-Soviet gathering in Moscow, which revealed as never before the split widening between these major Communist rivals and which was marked by the kind of invective usually aimed at the West alone.

All three leaders of the test-ban nations have personal reasons for reaching some success in the negotiations. Mr. Khrushchev has fresh cause to take a long-term view of the growing might of China, to a degree that seems inevitably to orient him towards the West in some measure. Prime Minister Macmillan has pinned his hopes that agreement on nuclear testing will offset the effects of the sex-security scandals that have dimmed the political image of his government, and President Kennedy also has troubles at home over his civil rights program and other domestic worries. Each of them has a more urgent personal stake than before in this further attempt to secure agreement on ending these baleful nuclear experiments.

This is not to imply that conciliation will come about automatically, but it does promise more hope than ever before. Suspicion is still rife between East and West and the "small print" of agreements in principle usually rise to bedevil any real progress. The atmosphere is favorable, however, and this in the long run may spell success.

A Splendid Effort

BY ALL COUNTS the building fund campaign of the YM-YWCA has reached a most creditable total. If it is still short of the goal of $1,138,000 the effort to date has been a tremendous one.

To raise close to a million dollars—and almost $800,000 has been collected or pledged—while other worthy and needful causes are also a matter of public appeal, is a fine reflection of the response of the community and of national organizations to this bid to renew the strength and facilities of these dual and valuable civic amenities.

There can be small doubt now that soon this new building will arise and the YM-YWCA given the facilities to carry on the work that makes it of vital importance to the general weal of this area.

Having proved their enthusiasm and willingness to absorb the substantial share of the financing, Victorians may look forward with some confidence to a helping hand from provincial coffers.

Since local initiative hasn't shrunk from the challenge this would seem to be deserved, and one hopes Premier Bennett will agree to crown the effort with a benevolent gesture.

Death at Large

THE TRAGIC death of a two-year-old child in Vancouver may serve to bring to the public's notice the dangers of handling or using insecticides or weed-killers containing poisons which could be dangerous or even fatal to human beings and for which there are apparently no easily obtainable or effective antidotes.

In these days of streamlined gardening in which we cannot stand to see a weed or strange insect in our backyards, it is easy to call in at the local hardware store or nearest garden-supply shop and pick up one of the myriad miracle cure-all to rid our lawns or flower beds of the unwanted pests.

Perhaps it is too easy. Too easy for the general public to buy them, too easy for the retailers to sell them, too easy for the manufacturers to put them on the market—and too easy for a child to die because of them.

That this situation is an extremely dangerous one should be recognized by those in authority and steps should be taken by them to immediately overhaul the regulations governing the sale of all pesticides containing poisons for which there are no antidotes.

Unless this is done we may, all of us, become potential killers.

The Civic Fountain

IT WILL be a miracle if Mr. Roderick Clack pleases everyone with the design for a fountain in the Victoria Centennial Square on which he is now working. No one has pleased everyone with a plan for anything in this city within recall. Which only goes to prove Victorians' laudable independence of opinion and taste.

Yet, if Mr. Clack does not mind one more suggestion when he probably has been privately showered and flooded with them, a great rolling tumble and splash of water surely would be most agreeable to almost all beholders. And listeners. For one of the virtues of some of the best fountains is that the very sound of them is cooling on a warm day, and in more dismal weather can make a downpour seem weak competition.

A trickier, moreover, or a light and flimsy spouter, even if pretty, may bespeak a certain meanness. The larger the volume of water the more adequate the expression of the city's bigness of spirit, and the more will the gush and gurgles seem felicitously to reflect Victoria's motto of Semper Liber—Always Free.

The motto already applies in a way to the fountain, which will be built as the gift of the adjoining municipalities, and thus free of cost to the city. Its operation may fall in a different category: the local governments do not receive water without charge but buy it from the Greater Victoria water board of which they are the sole members. But if this and other concerns for the bill are the only impediments to a splendid visual and aural display, surely the difficulty could be resolved by the board. It would be an exceptional case.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes, and ships, and sailing wax..."
By TOM TAYLOR

WE'LL have to wait a while, a year at least, but we are promised that come the Centennial Square in all its gladsome glory, the buildings will "float in pools of liquid light."

A nice phrase that, even if it doesn't mean the buildings will actually hang in the air or the light flow like water down into the harbor.

What is envisaged is the kind of illumination so pleasingly introduced to the local scene of late, a la the candle-flame atop the water tower and the flood-lighting of Craigdarroch.

Flood-lighting is now a number-one architectural amenity. It is aesthetically satisfying and heightens the beauty, and the drama if drama lurks anywhere in the background, of the objects given a night-time glow.

It would seem that this downtown oasis is really going to be something; I don't recall a civic symposium approached with so much enthusiasm and imagination.

ANOTHER victorious link with the momentous past, this time from a Fairfield reader arrested by mention of the Crimean campaign.

He recalls as a small boy attending the funeral at Tillicoultry of a Balacava veteran, one of the original "thin red line," a sergeant who lost an eye in the wars.

His regiment was the 53rd, the Sutherland, and their modern successors, the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, turned out in gallant style to lay the old soldier to rest.

My correspondent, with other small fry of his ilk, remembers being apprehensive lest his medals would be buried with the casket, and how relieved they were when they were rescued for posterity after the rites were concluded.

AT the Rotary luncheon last week were some brightly and welcome guests, four boys and a girl.

These were the Greater Victoria senior high school students who reached for the top in the recent TV quiz program and proved themselves the cream of the crop.

They won the "Reach for the Top" provincial championship series.

If you have watched any of these programs, doubtless, like yours truly, you've marvelled not alone at their academic aptitudes but also at the swiftness of their reflexes.

Even sitting at home, under no tension, most of their adults couldn't begin to match them. It's not enough to know all the answers to a bewildering series of questions; to ring up the count of points involves instant mental response.

Sometimes in fact before the questioner has completed his query.

Victoria breeds these smart young people on a par with fast-thinking and knowledgeable groups from other centres.

PRIVATE and a marshal of the Soviet army, no less, agree that there's too much swearing among Russian troops.

This isn't surprising news, although the agreement is one wonders how come a private and a marshal ever got together on the matter.

None of our generals, I feel sure, ever asks our privates what they think of impolite utterances.

For of course the rough euphemism is common to our chaps, too. I doubt that an army ever could be an army, in fact, anywhere, without it.

I am not condoning the use of bad language which has as a lesser demerit the weakness that it's frightfully boring. There isn't a man in a thousand, maybe ten thousand, who can swear with picturesque variation.

It's only fair to point out, though, and for Red Army soldiers as well as our own, that when troops swear they don't always mean what they say. A disreputable phrase might imply only such an innocent thought as "Really, how awful."

Even a four-letter word can be an endearment.

But if Soviet privates and marshals are disturbed they blame it on the capitalistic system; swearing was invented long before communism.

Although it will be this that's suspect; they're indulging in our habits and that's not to be countenanced at all, at all.

Southern Rhodesia

Strain on the Commonwealth

By THOMAS G. LAND from London

THE strain of racial tension in Southern Rhodesia has pushed the Commonwealth into greater danger of breaking up than it has had to face at any time during its history.

That is the outcome of a recent discussion in the House of Lords following talks on independence for Southern Rhodesia.

"Unless the British government succeeds in carrying the other Commonwealth countries with it on any decision taken about the future of Southern Rhodesia, there is a grave risk the Commonwealth may break up," Lord Listowel told the Lord Chancellor.

"We have... been made aware of the importance attached to this question by many Commonwealth governments," Lord Dillhorne replied.

The problem is simple: If on one hand Britain grants independence for Southern Rhodesia under its present constitution, or one similar to it, the African Commonwealth countries are likely to protest and even quit the organization; if on the other hand this country insists on racial equality as a condition of independence, it will be flatly refused by the Southern Rhodesian government.

There is no third way out of the problem as Southern Rhodesia is pressing for independence to be granted almost immediately. Some African nations are, however, severely opposed to Britain's granting independence to the territory until it introduces majority rule.

"Southern Rhodesia's self-governing status is not a figment," says The Manchester Guardian in a concerned editorial. "If she chose to take independence, Britain would need military intervention to stop her. The mood of the African heads of state showed that there is a strong feeling force should be used if necessary, if not by Britain, then by the Africans themselves.... But the Commonwealth could not long survive rumors of war among its members any more than war itself."

The Colonial Office is known to have received several warnings from various newly independent African countries about the final decision Britain will choose to take in the Southern Rhodesia question. An open caution came from Tom Mboya, minister of justice and constitutional affairs in Kenya.

He told Britain that any move by the British government to grant independence for Southern Rhodesia under its present white minority administration would mean "a grave constitutional crisis for the Commonwealth," and the withdrawal of Kenya from Commonwealth membership.

Addressing a press conference during a recent visit to the Commonwealth capital, he said his government would interpret such a move by Britain "as an unfriendly act to the African people."

"It would be a mockery for us to continue in the Commonwealth under these circumstances," he said. "It would be completely hypocritical."

The Southern Rhodesian attitude to the question has been clearly pronounced by Premier Winston Field in an address delivered to a session of the territorial Parliament in Salisbury.

Reporting on recent talks here with R. A. Butler, British minister for Central African affairs, Field said: "There was some opposition to our independence from members of the Commonwealth—particularly some new members who we know are demanding that we introduce their system of one man, one vote, one party, one dictator, before we get independence, and it was suggested that we might do something to satisfy these countries."

"I replied," he continued, "that nothing would satisfy these people but the departure of all Europeans and that we were not prepared to appease in this way."

The premier stressed that he was not prepared to consider major changes in the present electoral franchise to give the African vote a greater weight.

"I must make it clear," he added, "that we have not departed one iota from our determination to achieve independence."

"It may be," The Guardian suggests, "that the Commonwealth countries do not fully appreciate the dilemma which faces Britain—whether to negotiate for improvements in the African franchise, knowing that they would be probably inadequate, and then 'grant' independence formally; or whether to insist on adequate improvements and see Southern Rhodesia break away without conceding any."

Whatever might be the outcome of a Commonwealth prime ministers' conference, it is urgent that one should be held, the newspaper suggests. The Commonwealth can continue to play a major part in overcoming racial differences. It would be a tragedy, The Guardian says, if it were to disintegrate—"but if no effort were made to save it, we should never forgive ourselves."

On the first of these three—the Liberals, of course, won them all—only 73 Conservatives voted.

There are 95 of them in the Commons, enough, if they could team with Social Credit and the New Democrats—as the Liberals did so unapologetically well in the last Parliament—to overthrow the government.

But on that first vote, 22 skipped. Of these, 12 were absent and the other 10 "paired."

On the second vote, only 74 stood up to be counted. Eleven played hockey and 10 were "paired."

Twenty of them ducked the third vote through absenteeism, and another 13 "paired," with only 62 standing up for the count.

Kindly Decline

By GREGORY CLARK

ONE of my friends has written to the provincial secretary, whose department keeps track of the population, the municipalities and so on, to enquire for a town that is falling.

"I want a town," he says, "that is on the skids. If its population has stood still for 20 years, fine. If it has dwindled a few hundred or a thousand, so much the better. What I am after is a small town somewhere a little off the great main arteries of our highway system. It has lost a couple of its industries lately, that would be perfect. If its taxes are causing concern to the local taxpayers, I would be most interested."

"What on earth!" I exclaimed.

"I'm going to retire," said my friend. "I am sick and tired of progress, expansion, development. I am utterly and hopelessly fed up with the city and everything it stands for. When I get this list of towns on the wane, I'm going to visit them. And in one of them, I will find, at a most reasonable price, some lovely old red brick house with gables and a lot of lawns and old stables around it, and I'll move there."

And there I'll end my days, with a tower a sight, or a sound of progress, but only peace, and a kindly decline to match my own.

Missed Chances

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

THE members of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition have been hearing from the folks back home.

The voters are beginning to ask questions. And not that it isn't high time, too. For the Opposition really hasn't been doing any honest-to-goodness opposing.

Instead, the honorable members have been merely making noises. Talking, but not acting tough.

That goes alike for the Conservatives and the New Democrats.

Social Credit?

Who cares anymore, especially in Parliament, about those "Crazy Caouette Kids" as they're known?

It was Sir John A. Macdonald who first defined the role of the Opposition in the Canadian parliamentary system.

It was, he said, simply "to oppose."

That was 1867.

Now, nearly 100 years later, the definition has been brought up to date. Made more precise, even pointed.

The Opposition's job, it has been said, is to "defeat the government."

Who says so? None other than External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, the "old pro" of the Liberals.

Veteran of the Mackenzie King and Louis St. Laurent cabinets, good right arm of Prime Minister Pearson, he has been around the House of Commons ever since 1935...

... which should put him in the position of knowing, if anybody does, what the responsibilities of the Opposition.

He laid it down as policy in the last Parliament when the Liberals supported Social Credit in a voting test of strength against the Conservatives on the widely oddball issue of "debt-free money."

It wasn't, Mr. Martin was at pains to point out, that the Liberals bought this Social idea about debt-free money, "whatever that may be"—it was purely and simply that the Liberals had been "elected to defeat the government."

So now, in this new minority Parliament, with the Conservative and Liberal roles reversed, what happens?

Look at the record in the final showdown votes on the budget.

If ever an Opposition had the heat on the government, it was the way the Conservatives and the New Democrats had the Liberals over the barrel with that budget. First there was the little matter of its "ghost writing" by the three "Boys from Bay Street." Then there was the withdrawal of the tobacco tax on the startling discovery that the "Toronto Trio" was STILL on the public payroll. And last, or maybe it is far from the last, there was the smooching out of the rougher rubs of the sales tax.

So how went the votes? On the first of these three—the Liberals, of course, won them all—only 73 Conservatives voted.

There are 95 of them in the Commons, enough, if they could team with Social Credit and the New Democrats—as the Liberals did so unapologetically well in the last Parliament—to overthrow the government.

But on that first vote, 22 skipped. Of these, 12 were absent and the other 10 "paired."

On the second vote, only 74 stood up to be counted. Eleven played hockey and 10 were "paired."

Twenty of them ducked the third vote through absenteeism, and another 13 "paired," with only 62 standing up for the count.

Now here's the rub. In the last Parliament, when, as Paul Martin said, the Liberals were elected "to defeat the government," they did not "pair" with the Conservatives. But now, with the roles reversed, the Conservatives are "pairing" with the Liberals.

What's "pairing?" It's a cozy little arrangement, quite informal and highly improper—even frowned on officially by party leaders and whips—between members of the two "old parties" to trade off votes so they can play hockey from the House.

In a "pair," a Liberal agrees to vote when his Conservative "partner" is away, and vice versa.

Now, just how ridiculous can this "pair" business become? Well, the other night, on the only close vote of this session, when the Conservatives, New Democrats and Socials combined, they were but one short—107 to 108—of catching the government on a Speaker's ruling favoring the Liberals. A loss wouldn't have defeated the government, but it would have embarrassed them. There were five "pairs."

One of the "paired" Conservatives needn't have traded off votes at all, for his Liberal "partner" was in the Commons and voting. But the Tory thought he was a "pair," and so he was taking a slant at his hotel when the count was made, and didn't know he could have tied it up.

British Railmen Find Strayed Space Stuff

MACCLESFIELD, England (UPI) — A 55-pound box of space research material, lost by British Railways after journeys through space and then 12,000 miles from Australia, was found Monday 10 miles from its destination, Jodrell Bank observatory.

The box, containing micro-meteorite dust from space, apparently was given a wrong address.

Trustees Urged for Sailors

Norris Calls for Great Lakes Cleanup

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government was urged Monday to clamp an immediate trusteeship on sailors' unions in Canada to clean up waterfront labor lawlessness that threatens the nation's economy.

Faced with a sizzling picture of mounting gangsterism and violence in the Great Lakes shipping industry, Labor Minister MacEachen promised a high-speed study of the far-reaching plan to restore peace and order to the waterfront.

Year's Probe

The plan was laid before the minister by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris after a year-long investigation of labor strife and shipping disruptions on the Great Lakes.

Mr. MacEachen, clutching his copy of the 318-page report, told a press conference that after study, firm proposals for government action would be laid before the cabinet to deal with the turbulent lake situation.

Triple Board

The Vancouver judge, a crisp and crusty jurist with a penchant for lively writing, proposed that the federal government take over and clean up sailors' unions in Canada through a three-man independent trusteeship.

He said the trustees should have wide powers to rule and reform the waterfront unions and to integrate them into a single body.

The judge made his unprecedented proposal for government trusteeship after singling out burly Hal C. Banks of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada as "an appallingly lawless man" who dominates the lake shipping industry as a dictator.

He branded Mr. Banks as a bully and tyrant—"cruel, dishonest, greedy, power-hungry, contemptuous of the law."

Mr. Justice Norris said Mr. Banks should be banned from holding union office—as should his SIU underlings.

Threatened

The judge said the trusteeship is necessary because Canada's economy is threatened through shipping disruptions by a "labor combination" of America-based trade unions—the Longshoremen's Association, the Seafarers' Union and the Teamsters' Union.

Mr. MacEachen said the next move on the Norris proposals would be a study in depth of the economic ramifications, followed by concrete proposals to the cabinet for possible legislative action. He tabled the report in the Commons.

The labor minister told reporters he would be in touch with U.S. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz to reopen the summit meeting of North America's two top labor leaders—President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress and AFL-CIO President George Meany.

Mr. MacEachen said the government may move quickly on some of the side recommendations of the Norris report—such as the suggestion that a special counsel be named to find out whether criminal charges could be laid against Banks.

Another proposal would forbid shipowners from signing contracts with non-certified unions. The judge rapped Canada Steamship Lines, the biggest lakes operator, for backing Banks in return for labor peace. Other points were a ban on the SIU hiring hall system, a U.S.-Canadian probe which might lead to a treaty giving ships free movement on the lakes, supervision of sailors' votes on unions and strikes and heavy fines to prevent illegal St. Lawrence Seaway shutdowns.

News Privileges Backed in Court

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Pennsylvania's supreme court Monday cleared two Philadelphia newspaper executives of contempt charges and set aside fines and prison sentences for the refusal to disclose to a grand jury documentation of stories concerning alleged wrongdoing in city hall.

The court divided six to one in throwing out the convictions of President Robert Taylor and City Editor Earl Selby of the Philadelphia Bulletin.

Each man was fined $1,000 and sentenced to five days in jail last April 15, but remained free on bond.

LAW CITED

Taylor and Selby said a 1937 state law protected them in their refusal to disclose documentary news sources.

FORMER AIDE

The case involved information from John FitzPatrick, a former city council aide, who told of alleged sale of legislation by council, after receipt of political contributions, as reported by The Bulletin.

Chief Justice John Bell of the Supreme Court, in the majority opinion, held a newspaper can refuse to disclose not only names of persons its reporters interview, but also documents such as tape recordings or other materials—it may obtain from that source.

DEW Line Closing 28 Stations

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Hellyer said Monday 28 DEW Line radar stations, 20 in Canada and eight in Alaska, will be closed and 123 Canadians and 60 Americans laid off.

The line is run by Federal Electric Co. of Paramus, N.J., under a U.S. air force contract and a re-appraisal of its effectiveness showed early warning would remain adequate after the changes.

Last Rites Set Today For Mrs. M. E. Nolan

Mass will be celebrated for Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Nolan, widow of a noted Calgary criminal lawyer and mother of the late Mr. Justice H. G. Nolan of the Supreme Court of Canada, at St. Patrick's Church in Victoria at 11 a.m. today.

Mrs. Nolan died Saturday in Royal Jubilee Hospital at 93.

ORIGINAL SENATE

Her husband Patrick, who died in 1913, was one of the first King's Counsels appointed in Alberta and was a member of the original Senate of the University of Alberta.

Her son was chief Canadian prosecutor in the Tokyo war crimes trials after the Second World War, and died in July, 1959, one month after his Supreme Court appointment.

Mrs. Nolan was born in Toronto, and was a former resident of Calgary for many years, before moving to Victoria 29 years ago. She lived at 3290 Upper Terrace.

Meetings Today

● Richard Bower will discuss Germany Today at a meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Victoria at 12:10 p.m. today in the Empress Hotel Ballroom.

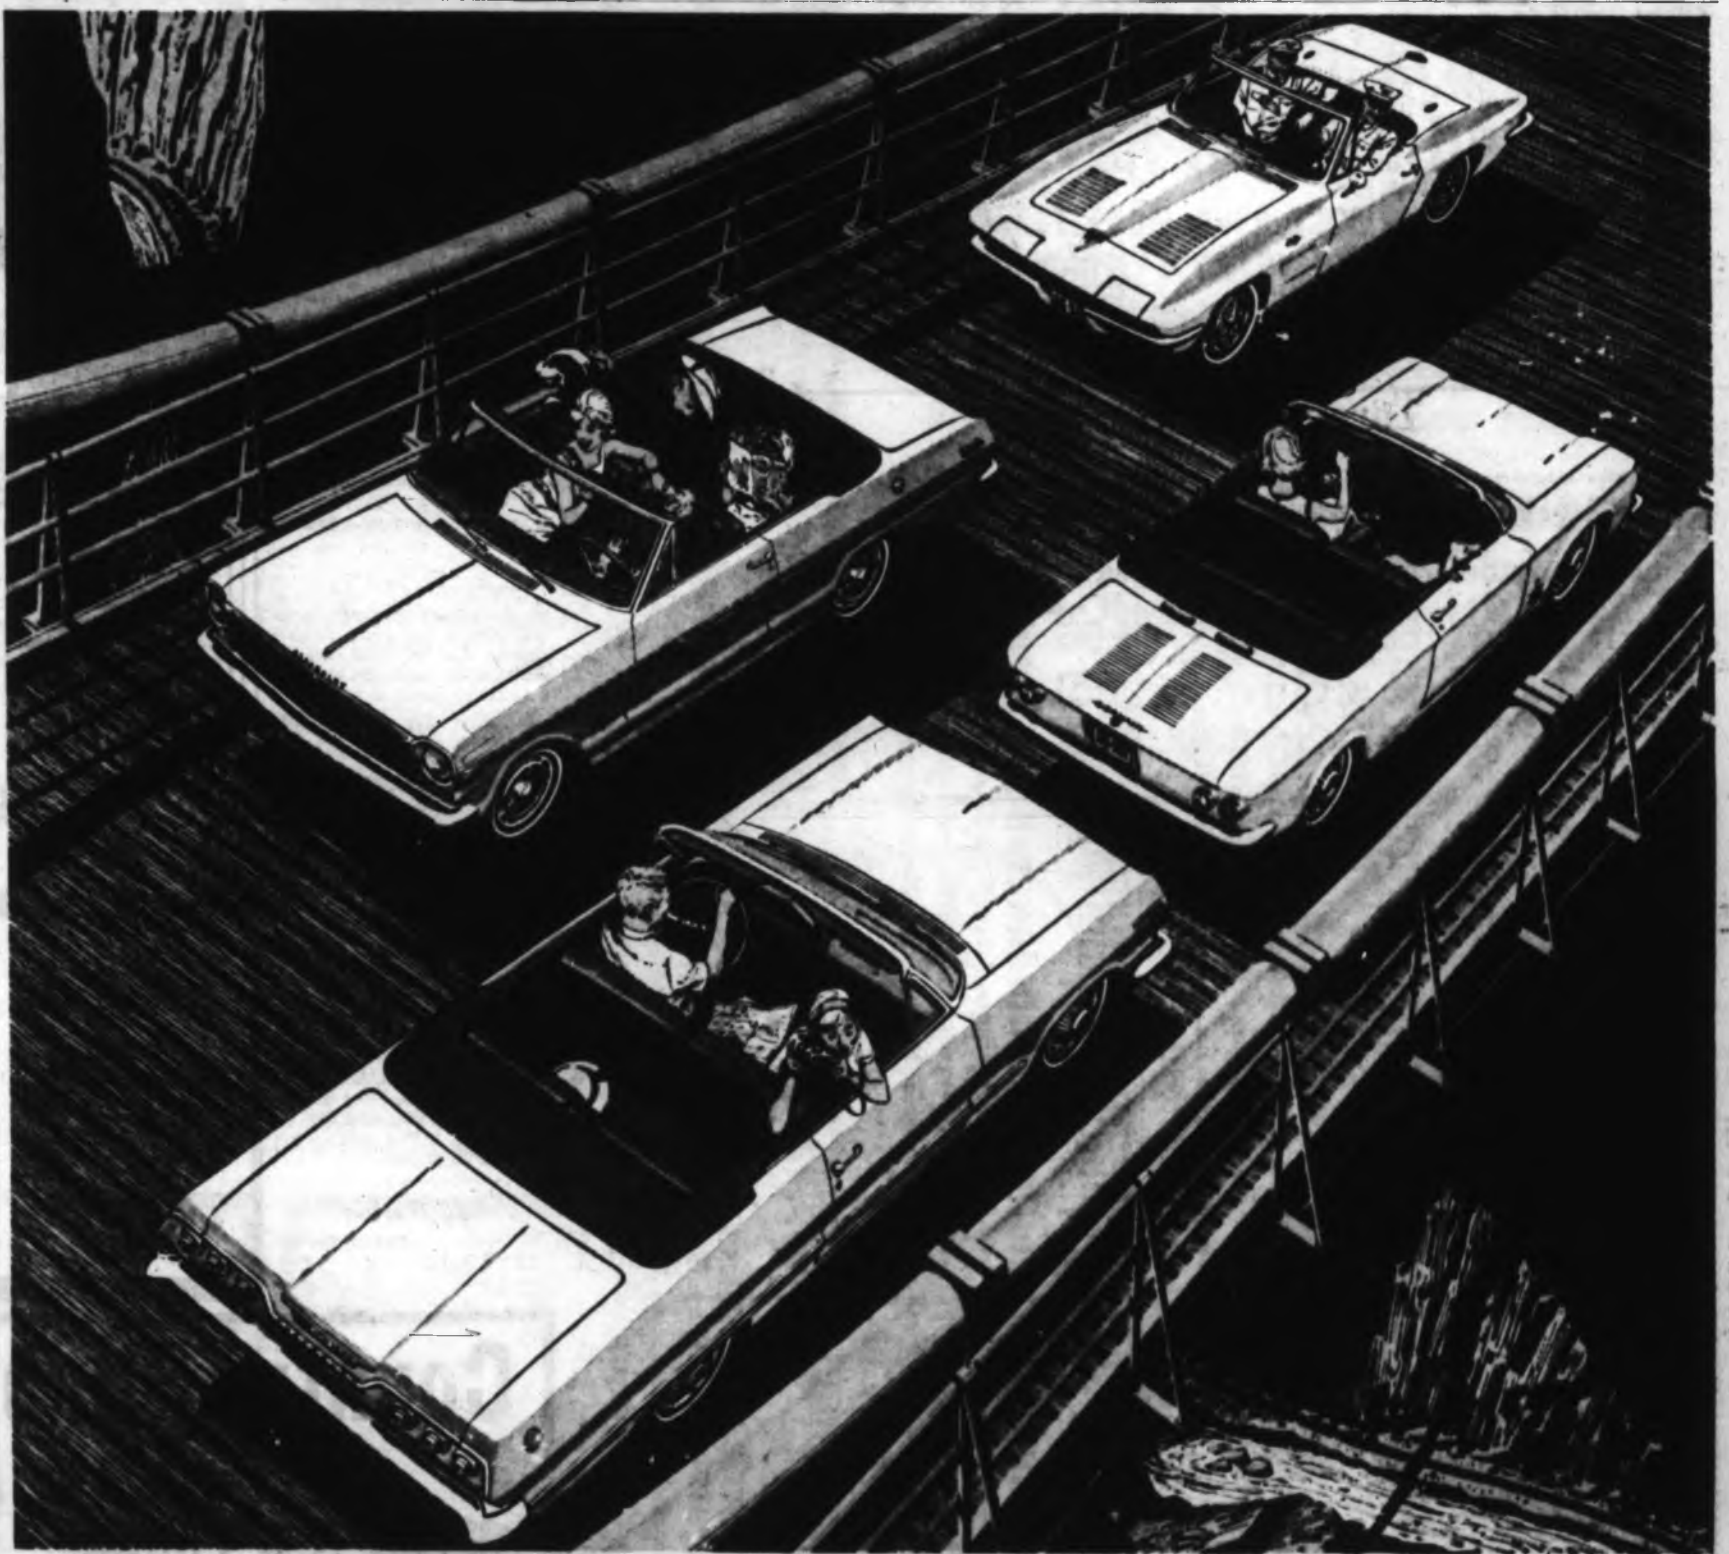

● The Kiwanis Club of Victoria North will visit the Undersea Gardens at the Oak Bay Marina following a dinner meeting at the Tally Ho Travelodge at 6:15 p.m.

Alterations Slated For Police Station

City police commission is expected to meet informally today to approve plans for minor structural alterations to the charge office of the police station.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said Monday the changes are designed to clean up the worst of charge office faults noted in the Archer report. Plans include a separate communications area and a public in-charge office, both by partitions. The three functions now are contained in a single, cramped area, and drew sharp criticism from George Archer. Major alterations to the police headquarters won't be undertaken until the new police chief has been appointed.

Telephones Go Hi-Fi Via Space

Hi-Fi has invaded the world of telephone communications, the B.C. Telephone Co. said Monday.

A $5,000,000 "tropospheric scatter system" between Vancouver Island and Alaska will give faster communications and "high fidelity voice reproduction." It will bounce radio waves off the troposphere more than a mile above the earth.

Singer's Savvy Success

By JÜRGEN HENSE

Bill Roberts came up the hard way, singing on the streets of London, England, for a square meal but now he's a professional folksinger with lots of savvy of his trade.

Because of his rich Tennessee accent, he knows his limitations and sticks to American folksongs: "If I'd sing an Italian song badly, well, what's the use in that?"

His first contact with The Secret's Sunday night audience was climaxed in frenetic applause.

He sings well, that is to say every word is distinct; he plays a clean guitar, avoiding mushy strum effects, and he adds a "huarp" to his repertoire.

A huarp, as he spells it, is a harmonica which he attaches around his neck, playing it simultaneously with the guitar.

Bill Roberts believes interest in folk music will shift, but not dwindle.

"I'm somewhere in the middle between purists and the folksingers who commercialize their styles. I wouldn't, couldn't sing and play like Leadbelly. I play his songs my way..."

A smiling Premier Bennett had breakfast Monday in Vancouver with senior executives of B.C. Hydro and Power Authority and representatives of the leading investment and banking houses of the province.

He handed over to the financial people for distribution an issue of $50,000,000 parity bonds, to mature Aug. 15, 1967 with a coupon rate of five per cent in the name of the Hydro Authority. They are to replace $25,000,000 B.C. Hydro bonds which fall due Aug. 15, 1963, and since last July have been paying an annual return of 5 1/2 per cent.

The return to the five per cent rate was anticipated because of the greater availability of short term money than a year ago when Mr. Bennett raised the rate on all the B.C. parity bonds from five to 5 1/2 per cent.

OVER-CEILING

Mr. Bennett also explained that, although the new issue would raise the outstanding B.C. parity bonds to $24,000,000 (over the ceiling of $22,000,000), he intended to redeem sufficient of the outstanding B.C. Electric parity bonds at an early date to get back under the ceiling.

Another interesting feature of the new issue is that Mr. Bennett has asked the underwriters to keep individual allotments to a maximum of $25,000, although he stated he had no intention of trying to limit holdings acquired in the secondary market.

SELL EASILY

Dealers expressed the view the new bonds would sell easily. They should. Only a few weeks ago Manitoba sold $10,000,000 savings bonds with 4 1/2 per cent interest rate.

LUCKY LABATT

Fourth quarter earnings were $865,000 (22 cents). Sales for the year were $86,028,000 against $85,490,000 in the previous year.

AT THE 19th

With Harry Young

This year's British Columbia golf team goes to Riverside, New Brunswick, without two of the players who have been regarded as the backbone of the side in recent years.

Neither John Johnston nor Bob Kidd was available, and of last year's side which finished in fourth place at Sunningdale, London, last year, Bill Wakeham and Bert Ticehurst remain.

Wakeham last year finished low scorer of the B.C. team, and although he was 144, four strokes behind medal-winning Gary Cowan of Ontario, he showed himself to have the big match flair, an ability which was confirmed later when he played in the World Cup games at Tokyo.

The Gorge Vale golfer is having another wonderful year. He is Island Open champion, Victoria Amateur champion and now for the second year in succession, B.C. Amateur champion.

Richmond Country Club out on the flat firm land of the Fraser delta is not an easy course. A. V. Macan designed it to make the best possible use of its wide but flat area, and in doing so he raised practically every green.

This apart from giving good drainage in bad weather, imposes a considerable strain on the players, for the greens are not only raised and often crowned, but are also small and narrow in shape.

In the final on Saturday when Wakeham beat Blake Cramb of Powell River 4-3, the local pro Benny Colt had made things even more difficult by placing the pins in the most difficult spots he could find.

The result was that sub-par scoring was almost impossible, and Wakeham, sensing the situation, played percentage shots all the way and trusted his longer-hitting rival to make some mistakes.

This is more or less what happened and Wakeham was never in danger of failing to hold his crown. Indeed those who saw him throughout the week said that he never once looked in any danger of elimination.

He is unquestionably a very competent player, and as a hole-out must have few rivals anywhere in the game. Lack of length off the tee alone keeps him from the dizzy heights of golf.

Bert Ticehurst, second man on the B.C. team this year, was the low medalist of the Vancouver area in this year's stroke competitions, and although he has not been showing his old form, he appears to be hitting the ball better at the moment than he has done for over a year. A year ago at Sunningdale, Ticehurst had a disappointing 152, and only qualified for the match play in the Canadian Amateur after a play-off.

The third member of the 1963 quartet is a newcomer to B.C., and is hardly known to Victoria golfers. He is Don Gardner who joined the Capilano Golf Club early this year after being transferred from Winnipeg.

In Vancouver medal events he was joint second to Ticehurst along with 20-year-old Doug Reid, who played on last year's winning junior team, and is regarded as one of the province's better youngsters.

Before coming to B.C., Gardner played out of Nlakwa, Winnipeg, and he appeared on three successive Manitoba Willingdon Cup teams—1956-7-8, and won the Manitoba Amateur in 1958 when he beat Ted Homenuik in the final 5-4.

However Gardner's past performance for Manitoba in the Willingdon Cup are not encouraging. Each time he was placed third man in his team. He scored 74-78-152—nine off the pace at Edmonton, N.B., in 1956, and in the following year at St. Charles, Winnipeg, he was 71-75-146-10 behind the medalist, and in 1958 at Scarborough he was 73-81-160-13 behind the leading scorer. Manitoba then dropped him.

If Gardner's possibilities thus seem limited, there is hope that the young long-hitting Reid may turn out to be one of the B.C. hopes for the future. He gets a good rating in Vancouver golfing circles.

The two more obvious choices to go along with Wakeham and Ticehurst were, of course, Terry Campbell and Blake Cramb. Terry, a student at University of Maryland, was rejected because he had not played in the sufficient local competitions this year; and Cramb had to be content as first alternate because his medal form was not up to his match play standard.

However, Cramb must be regarded as a victim of circumstance. In picking the Willingdon Cup team special notice is given to what players do in the Vancouver and the Victoria city Amateurs.

Because Cramb belongs to Zone 6, he is not eligible for either of these events. Instead Cramb played in the Zone 6 championship at Nanaimo and won it looking around.

It would seem that if players from outside the Vancouver and Victoria areas are to get a chance of Willingdon Cup consideration some alteration in the method of selection may become necessary.

THE PALMER METHOD

Vancouver Cyclist Captures 100-Miler

Jack Ferguson of the Vancouver Cycling Club won the 100-mile Gary Lund Memorial bicycle race for the third time Sunday and set a new record doing it.

Ferguson covered the Quilcum to Portage Inlet route in four hours 13 minutes and 48 seconds or at an average speed of 24 miles an hour.

Bruce Coombs of Port Moody and Seattle's Clare Bonner battled right down to the wire before Coombs edged into second place by only five seconds. Coombs' time was 4:15:39; Bonner's 4:16:04.

The long drag over the Malahat made the difference as Ferguson had too much stamina for any of his opponents.

Flavio Todesco (4:17:39) finished in fourth place while fifth and sixth spots involved another photo finish as Rob Way barely nipped Norm Kendall. All three riders were from Vancouver.

Only Victorians to finish the race, in which more than half the starters dropped out, were

He became manager of the club on July 8, 1959, succeeding Mayo Smith, and led the Reds to the National League pennant in 1961.

On Rebuilt Course

Amateur in Kelowna

The British Columbia Golf Association at its annual meeting Saturday approved the selection of Kelowna Golf Course as the venue for the 1964 British Columbia Amateur Championship.

It will be the first time in 68 years that the provincial title has been played for outside of the Victoria and Vancouver areas. The Kelowna golf club has been entirely altered in the past three years, and the new layout is the work of A. V. Macan, Victoria golf architect. The 18 holes are laid out mainly on the land which formerly formed the nine-hole course. It is 6,205 yards in length and has a par 35-38-72.

Dillard Stamps' Star In Win Over Riders

OTTAWA (UPI)—Halfback Jim Dillard returned a fourth-quarter kickoff 14 yards for a touchdown last night to lead the Calgary Stampeders to a 24-7 victory over the Ottawa Rough Riders in the first exhibition game of the Canadian Football League season.

A rain-drenched crowd of 12,000 at Lansdowne Park saw Dillard break loose from a circle of tacklers near center-field and easily out-distance his pursuers in the long spectacular play in an otherwise dull beginning for the 1963 season.

The Stampeders scored the first time they touched the ball and were never threatened. They had a 17-0 lead before Ottawa got on the scoreboard and Dillard quickly matched that score with his brilliant run on the following kickoff.

Dillard also scored Calgary's opening major on a seven-yard pass from Eagle Day. Second-string quarterback Gerry Keeling set the other touchdowns on a one-yard bootleg play, while Larry Robinson booted three converts and a 17-yard field goal.

Canadian Whit Tucker, shifted to offensive plunger after a fine rookie year in 1962 as a defensive back, caught a 25-yard pass from rookie quarterback Tommy Lee, a Hawaiian-born grad of tiny Willamette College in Oregon, for Ottawa's lone major. Mac Rae added the extra point.

FIRST QUARTER:
1-Calgary, touchdown (Dillard, 14 yards) 7-0.
2-Calgary, convert (Robinson).

SECOND QUARTER:
1-Calgary, touchdown (Keeling, 25 yards) 14-0.
2-Calgary, convert (Robinson).

THIRD QUARTER:
1-Calgary, field goal (Robinson, 17 yards) 21-0.
2-Calgary, field goal (Robinson, 17 yards) 24-0.

FOURTH QUARTER:
1-Ottawa, touchdown (Tucker, 17 yards) 24-7.
2-Calgary, convert (Robinson).

City Junior Golfers Lose Inter-City Set

Vancouver junior golf team won its return match with the Victoria junior team at Point Grey Golf Course Sunday by 10 matches to five. The Victoria team had beaten the mainlanders 8-7 at Victoria Golf Club two weeks ago.

Urban Allen and John McCormick, were unable to travel. Sunday's outing was not a total failure, however, as Gary Smith and Ricky Kent carded the low scores of the day (73) in winning their matches. Smith and Noel Pumfrey won their four-ball game while Kent partnering Jay Wilson took the team game.

Good Citizen Nominations Sought

The call went out yesterday for nominations for Greater Victoria's 1963 Good Citizen award.

From among the expected hundreds of recommendations a special committee will carefully select its choice for the award.

Presentation of the Good Citizen award, sponsored by Post No. 1 Victoria of the Native Sons of B.C., will be made late in August.

Recipients of the award in recent years include Mrs. E. E. Harper, convener of a free food stall for needy families, 1962; Judge J. B. Clearhue, prominent in Canadian citizenship and University of Victoria activities, 1961; former B.C. Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, 1960, and popular naturalist Freeman King, 1959.

Residents throughout Greater Victoria are invited to mail letters nominating any person they believe has displayed the best principles of good citizenship, a Native Sons spokesman said yesterday.

Nominations should be mailed to the group's secretary, Mr. R. H. Hisecks, 609 Trutch Street, Victoria, B.C., and letters must state why the person nominated should get the award, he said.

Garden Shut Few Hours

Normally open to the public, the grounds of Government House will be closed from noon Wednesday to allow caterers to make preparations for the annual garden party given by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes and Mrs. Pearkes later that afternoon.

Saanich Told Left Turns Back At Dupplin

By JACK FREY

Provincial highways department has decided to allow left turns to and from Dupplin Road where a number of Saanich merchants had feared they would be put out of business by the proposed turning ban, Saanich public works committee was informed last night.

However, if "an undue number of accidents" happen at that Dupplin-Douglas intersection, the turn will have to be prohibited either during certain hours or at all times," stated J. H. Harding, senior traffic engineer for the highways department, in a letter to Saanich officials.

VOICED OPPOSITION

Dupplin Road merchants and majority of Saanich council members voiced open opposition, when the Colonist recently announced the highways department plan to stop left turns to and from Dupplin and nearby Roderick Street.

A number of merchants in this part of Saanich earlier lost valuable customer parking space because of the parking ban imposed in connection with the Douglas Street Capital Improvement District Commission beautification project.

FINAL BLOW

They charged that the proposed "no left turn" regulations could be the final blow to put them out of business entirely.

Mr. Harding, in his letter to Saanich, expressed displeasure that newspaper stories had disclosed the highways department's plans.

PERMIT TURNS

"Despite what has been said in premature newspaper accounts, the object of the proposed two-way left turn lane on Douglas was to legally permit and to facilitate left turns into and out of as many businesses and local streets as possible."

"For the time being, the department is willing to leave a gap in the proposed double solid line marking, to legally permit the left turn to Dupplin from the left hand through lane on Douglas, while pointing out that the resulting situation will be hazardous," the letter stated.

NO CHANGE

"Essentially, this means that there will be no change from the present situation, as far as left turns to Dupplin are concerned."

"These left turns are now made from a through lane through a gap in the double solid marking. If it develops that these left turns cause an undue number of accidents, then the turn will have to be prohibited either during certain hours or at all times."

PROHIBITION RETAINED

"The left turn prohibition on and off Roderick has been retained as it does not appear to be very harmful to anyone," stated the letter.

Marine Life Study Suggested

A biological study of the marine life in Portage Inlet might be ordered by Saanich council in connection with future bids for use of Colquitz Creek as an outlet for treated sewage.

Public works committee recommended last night council authorize such a study to be carried out by Northwest Biological Laboratory on Shelbourne Street, at a cost of about $300.

Under study would be aquatic plant and animal species in the inlet, along with a survey of visible floating vegetation there.

Music Today

A free concert of chamber music will be given in the Lansdowne auditorium of the University of Victoria at 12:30 p.m. today with Dr. Woodford Garrigue, Maurice Crawford and Charles Palmer.

Trollers Seek Way to Sea

By HARVEY SHEPHERD

Angry independent troller fishermen plan to seek a way to go fishing despite a union fishermen's strike which this weekend halted virtually all B.C. coast commercial fishing, union and non-union.

Officials of the Pacific Trollers' Association will attempt to find a market for their fish, likely in the U.S. They will report to Victoria independent trollers at a meeting tonight.

One independent troller Monday said he plans to go fishing this week whatever the outcome of tonight's meeting and if U.S. markets are not available he will try to outlast the strike.

Trollers interviewed Monday at Victoria's Fishermen's Wharf said they feel it is unfair of the United Fishermen's and Allied Workers' Union to attempt to force them to join the strike which the union's salmon net fishermen began Saturday noon.

They said they are not in the union and the fish they catch—mainly spring and coho salmon for the fresh fish trade—are different from the humpback (pink) and sockeye salmon mainly caught by the net fishermen for canning.

Won't Strikebreak

By the same token, they said, they will not be strikebreakers if they do go fishing, and in fact will throw back into the sea any canning variety salmon they do happen to catch.

Trollers said there are about 3,000 non-union troller fishermen in B.C. who have been immobilized by the strike, some 120 of whom work out of Victoria. They generally operate their own boats.

Trollers also complained that the beginning of the strike comes right at the height of the season for troller fishermen, while the height of the season for salmon net fishermen is some two weeks away.

Cost Year's Profit

One troller estimated that a two-week layover would cost each troller about $2,000—approximately his normal profit for the year. The layover would eliminate one of the eight to 10 trips a troller normally makes to sea each season.

Trollers who probably will not fish in the face of the strike are those who work during part of the season at some other job and probably belong to a union there.

The same consideration will probably keep out of operation the "putter fleet" of primarily otherwise employed persons who fish commercially with essentially sport fishing equipment. It has been estimated there are some 500 such fishermen in the Victoria-Sooke area.

Processing Rushed

Victoria fish processors Monday were rushing to get fish processed before an 11 a.m. Wednesday deadline for shore workers to handle fish caught before the Saturday noon deadline. The union said troll salmon, crabs, bottom fish and halibut will be processed if they were caught before midnight Sunday.

Net fishermen stuck to support demands for higher prices and better welfare provisions in their contract with the B.C. Fisheries Association. Shore workers have also voted to strike. Trollersmen voted by two votes not to, but the union says they will not handle "hot" cargo.

The companies refused to raise prices for salmon this year and proposed a price cut for two varieties.

Troller heads into Victoria Fishermen's Wharf to tie up with others idled by strike by United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (Ind.). Strike has virtually halted operations by troller fleet, although trollers are run by independent operators who do not belong to union.

Letter to Council

Corner Stores Fight Hours Regulations

Owners of small corner stores in Victoria have registered strong opposition to a proposed move to regulate shop closing hours.

L. W. Westendale, president of the Independent Merchants Co-operative Association, representing 53 confectionery and grocery operators, set out its views in a letter received at City hall yesterday.

"Our members, having had years of experience operating under the old city stores closing bylaw, with its inconvenience both to ourselves and our customers, and its resultant disruption to our normal flow of trade, voted unanimously to protest any change in (existing regulations)," the letter said.

OTHER AREAS HIT

It went on to urge city council to reject the Retail Merchants Association plea for new regulations and maintain the present wide-open store hours.

Mr. Westendale said: "Various up-land municipalities who lack the insight of our present council and who do not take advantage of the provincial clause allowing for open store hours are now experiencing the results of that lack."

The IMCA spokesman later told the Colonist: "Too many organizations are asking the various levels of government to change regulations to suit themselves. Our members say that if some merchants can't stand the competition, then they should get out of the business."

Bonds Incorrect

Third Lowest Bid Accepted

A contractor's attempt to have Greater Victoria school board cancel a contract it had accepted for school construction and accept his firm's lower bid was rejected by board members last night. "I feel the basis of calling bids on any project is primarily to get the lowest bid you can," Fred Robinson, estimator for Siegg Bros., told members. "... It seems a little unusual for a body handling public money to disregard something like $1,800 on what I think is a secondary technicality ..."

At a special meeting Thursday night the school board opened tenders for construction of two classrooms, an activity room and additions to washrooms at Strawberry Vale school.

WRONG BOND

Two bids — $56,100 submitted by Siegg Bros. and $62,482 submitted by E. J. Hunter & Sons — were rejected because the bonds accompanying the bids did not meet the specifications laid down by the school board.

Contract was awarded to the next lowest bid of $57,980 submitted by D'Arcy Construction.

UNFORTUNATE ERROR

Mr. Robinson said the Siegg Bros. bid was submitted in good faith despite the fact that the incorrect bond was submitted as an unfortunate error.

He told the board he had a correct bond in his pocket for the board's convenience if members decided to reject the D'Arcy bid and accept the lower bid by Siegg Bros.

"If you feel the technicalities revolving around this situation are such that you cannot accept this bid, I would respectfully suggest that you consider the point that all bids be rejected and that tenders be called again."

BACK DECISION

In discussion, members of the board decided against altering their decision to award the contract to D'Arcy Construction.

"I feel we did right in rejecting the two tenders we did," George Curran, chairman of the buildings and grounds committee which opened the tenders, commented. "The proper bid bonds were not with them."

He added that the bid bond concerned not only did not meet the form laid down by the school board but was also made out to school district 63, Saanich.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I wish these girls would quit crying because they have figures like ironing boards. My problem is just the opposite and I would gladly change places with any of them. It's easy to add to what you don't have, but nothing can be done when you have too much.

Ever since I was 12, I have been subjected to crude remarks because of generous over-endowment. All through school I've had a collection of private nicknames you would not believe. I tried walking hunched over, carrying my books in front, I wore loose blouses. Nothing helped.

You can't imagine what it's like for a young girl never to be able to wear a sweater or a strapless dress or a low-cut gown. And what a job finding a decent fit! I need a size 10 dress with a 14 top.

So please tell the Flat Foots to stop moaning. If they had to wear a double D cup they'd know what trouble is.—ALL ME.

Dear You: An embarrassment of riches, you might call it. Here's your letter and let's hope it cheers up the Flat Foots—although they will probably find little comfort in knowing that someone else has too much of what they'd like more of.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the mother of four teenagers. These are precious times for growing up, but I am not concerned even remotely about my daughters, Ann. It's the boys that worry me. Tom is 16 and Jim 18. They are obedient and respectful, excellent students, well-behaved.

B.C. Camps Boomed By Ottawa

VANCOUVER (CP)—The federal government will increase camping facilities at B.C.'s four national parks, Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing says.

Noble Boy Protects Girlfriend

LONDON (AP)—A scientist and writer told a British television audience Sunday "a chivalrous boy is one who takes contraceptives with him when he goes on a date."

"We might as well make up our minds," added Dr. Alex Comfort, "that chastity is no more a virtue than malnutrition."

Dr. Comfort, 43, biologist and author, spoke on a BBC program called "sex and family life."

His views were among the frankest yet heard on British television. Forty-four of his audience telephoned the BBC to complain.

BEYOND FACTS

Dr. Comfort said sex education should go far beyond the mere facts of life to include instruction on correct use of contraceptives and this instruction should start at 15.

He suggested teenagers should observe two commandments—"thou shalt not produce under any circumstances an unwanted baby" and "thou shalt not exploit another's feelings."

He said he saw no reason why a man should not have a mistress as well as a wife, provided he is loyal to both.

"Many marriages need an adulterous prop to keep them on their feet," he said.

Mr. and Mrs. Wenstob Honeymoon in Alberta

The Grace English Lutheran Church was a scene of a pretty wedding recently when Rev. William A. Williams officiated at a double-ring ceremony as Jo-Ann Margaret, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Taylor, 1221 Goldstream Avenue, became the bride of Mr. Gary Edwin Einar Wenstob, 3422 Happy Valley Road.

The tall, fair-haired bride was escorted up the aisle by her father, while the organist, Mr. John Bergbusch, played "The Prince of Denmark March."

Miss Taylor chose a nylon sheer over taffeta-Belle skirt with a fitted bodice and draped waistline. Alencon flowers outlined a portrait neckline. Her headpiece of sherry tulle forming a crown dotted with teardrop pearls and a chapel veil of illusion veiling.

She carried her mother's prayer book, for something old. The prayer book was covered with nylon lace, a white orchid and streamers of lilacs of the valley. A cultured pearl pendant was a gift from the groom.

The three attendants, Mrs. Jean Carvath as matron of honor, Miss Sandra Heit and Miss Sheila Benish as bridesmaids, wore identical gowns of bouffant red nylon lace over skirts of taffeta sheaths. Their small headpieces were of imitation white camellia blossoms and tulle. They carried miniature baskets of red and white carnations and fern.

Mr. Wayne Wenstob was best man for his brother and usher was Mr. Larry Crosby and Mr. Ted Banner.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Chez Marcel where the bride's table was arranged with tall pink candles and rosebuds, centred with a three-tier wedding cake made by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Harry Pigot.

Mr. James Taylor proposed a toast to his niece.

For a honeymoon the bride and groom travelled to Alberta, visiting the groom's relatives. For her travelling ensemble the bride chose a pink linen suit and a beige duster coat, with white accessories.

Guests from out of town included Mr. and Mrs. John Taylor, Miss Barbara, Mr. Harvey Taylor, and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Holmes and Lloyd, all of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Nevous and family, Seattle; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kerr, Cloverdale, B.C.; Miss Jean Wenstob, Vicking, Alta.; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wenstob, Port Alberni; Mr. Michael Taylor, Delsey Bay.

Gibson-Wooliams

Attendants Wear Shades of Pink

An exquisite gown of white silk taffeta touched with French lace on the bodice and lily point sleeves was chosen by Donna Sue Wooliams for her marriage to Mr. Michael Robert Gibson.

The floor-length gown was styled with a scooped neckline. The skirt was fashioned with controlled fullness in the front and swept to a full train at the back. Two panels of lace extended to the top of the train. Her veil of fine illusion was held by a taffeta pillbox which was trimmed with seed pearls.

Rev. Robert Moies of Quilicum Beach officiated for his goddaughter in Garden City United Church, Mr. and Mrs. Mervin H. Wooliams, Victoria, are parents of the bride and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James C. Gibson of Hammond, B.C.

The bride was given in marriage by her father at the double ring ceremony. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and stephanotis. Pink and white were also the colors of the gladioli and Easter lily daisies that decorated the church.

Miss Angela Gurr was maid of honor in a pale pink dress of nylon sheer over taffeta, styled with three-quarter length sleeves. She wore a lace petal hat and carried pink roses and white carnations. Miss Irene Matchett of Regina, the bride's cousin and Miss Renee Gibson, the groom's sister, wore similar dresses with rose headpieces and bouffant veils. They carried pink and white carnations.

Little Janice Foster of Vancouver, the groom's cousin, was flower girl in a white organza frock trimmed with pink embroidery. Pink and white carnations were in her basket.

Mr. Sydney Price was best man and James Gibson and Whit Armstrong ushered guests. The reception was held at Holyrood House, where dinner was served to guests.

The bride's table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake which was topped with pink roses. The toast to the bride's happiness was proposed by Mrs. Harold Palsson.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barton of Cowichan Station, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a full length gown of white peau de soie, styled with princess line waist, scoop neckline trimmed with sequins and pearls and three white roses forming a bustle at the waistline. A crown of sequins and pearls held her chapel length, tiered tulle veil and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. June Proteau was matron of honor for her sister and Miss Gillian Carnell was bridesmaid. They wore blue dresses with lace bodices and full chiffon skirts. Their whimsy hats were blue and they carried white carnations.

Flower girl for her aunt was Brenda Proteau and she wore a dress of white chiffon with blue velvet sash and blue whimsy hat. White carnations were in her bouquet. Nephew of the bride, Donald Proteau, carried the wedding rings on a white satin cushion.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hutton Ferguson, 1452 Gladstone Avenue, had Dr. Donald R. Carlow as best man. The groom's cousins, Mr. Randolph J., Mr. Richard D. and Mr. William S. Colley, showed guests to the pews.

We believe in the older driver!

HAROLD GARDNER & IAN RENDLE

And not just at Christmas. Harold and I think he's a mighty important person all year 'round. He's more mature. Usually has better judgment - and fewer accidents. That's why, if he enjoys good health and a good record, we feel he deserves a better break on his car insurance. And at regular rates. Fortunately, Wawanesa believes in him, too. Now, you may have a number of years to go before you're 65 - but chances are you want to continue driving long after that age. So isn't it right now the time to start building a good record with Wawanesa and us? Give us a call soon. Or pop down our chimney, if you really prefer it that way.

Garden Notes

Move 'Em Around

By M. V. CHERNUT, FRES

I imagine quite a few forethought gardeners put in seeds of wallflowers and Sweet William this spring for blooming next year. These are ordinarily grown in coldframes or in sheltered outdoor seed beds to make sturdy plants for setting out in the flower beds this fall after the summer-blooming annuals have been pulled up and discarded.

One common mistake lies in allowing these biennial and perennial subjects to remain undisturbed all summer. The general belief is that, by thinning the plants to give them enough elbow room and by leaving the remaining plants undisturbed, they receive no transplanting setback and therefore make sturdier specimens.

This is perfectly true of vegetable plants, tomatoes and the summer-flowering annuals, but it is not true of our biennial and perennial flowering plants. It is far better with these subjects, and particularly with the wallflowers and Sweet Williams, to transplant them at least once during the summer and twice is even better. The idea in such transplanting is to break or cut through the longer roots to compel each plant to form a compact mass of fibrous roots. Such plants can be lifted in the fall with a good mass of soil around the roots and will suffer very little setback from their move. They take hold more readily in their flowering position and are therefore better equipped to withstand the rigors of winter. This transplanting is, in effect, a form of root pruning and I had better explain how this benefits the plant.

I imagine every gardener has, at one time or another, pinched the tip off a snapdragon plant to make it branch or grow bushy, or cut back a young hedge to make it thicken out at the bottom. Any gardener who has ever mistakenly headed a tomato plant to "throw all the strength into the fruit" must have been appalled by the veritable forest of side shoots which popped out after the beheading.

It isn't so generally realized this same branching occurs in many plants when the tips of the roots are snipped off; that is, the roots throw out branch roots, making a bush, heavily branched root system with many more "mouths" to take in moisture and nutrients. Such a plant transplants far more successfully than one with sparse, straggly roots.

There are several other applications of this principle besides the conditioning of wallflowers and Sweet Williams. For instance, if you are planning on moving any shrubs or young trees next spring, you can condition them now for their move by severing the root tips with a sharp spade driven straight down in a circle around the plant.

Dogwoods and birch trees are notoriously difficult to transplant from the wild, yet specimens purchased from a plant nursery can be moved into your garden with every prospect of surviving. This is because the wildlings make a long, straggly root system; it is almost impossible to get it all out of the ground without inflicting a fatal injury.

The nurseryman's birch or dogwood, on the other hand, has been transplanted every year or every second year throughout its life and, as each transplanting constitutes a form of root pruning, such "tame" plants make compact, well-branched root systems which can be dug up and transported to a customer's garden with very little injury or setback.

JOHN CROSBY Meets Mystified Millionaire

Populace Applauds the Rich

CAP FERRAT, France — "I am appalled," said my friend the middle-aged multi-millionaire, "by the commonality of the very rich."

"I am a depression baby, you know. Back in those days, there was a considerable danger to being rich. One hid the Rolls-Royces in the garage and even hid the garage."

"The mob lurked always outside. We trembled constantly on the brink of revolution. Life had spice in those days."

"Now, my God! Conspicuous consumption has got so very conspicuous. The very rich buy jet planes, for Pete's sake. That young twerp, K., who has not one but three yachts, for his girl friends. Even Louis XIV would have hesitated before flaunting three yachts in front of the populace. I tell you, I'm very disappointed in the very rich for behaving so flagrantly."

"But I'm even more disappointed, by the populace. They don't react the way they should at all. It's taking all the fun out of life. Hell, I remember back when possession of two yachts—much less three!—would get you publicly denounced."

"Now if you denounce the rich, you are considered a Communist. In America, the only people who run for president anymore are multi-millionaires. In my youth, a politician could have risen to high office simply by denouncing or, even better, investigating how Joseph Kennedy got all that money. Today you would be considered subversive even to suggest such a thing."

"And who are the others—Rockefeller, for heavens sake! In my youth the thought that a Rockefeller could ever have been considered for the presidency would have caused a convulsion. Goldwater, Romney—millionaires all."

The middle-aged millionaire heaved a large sigh.

"Let me tell you, in my youth, the poor looked at you with envy, spiced with downright hatred in their eyes. By George, you felt you were somebody in those days to be hated like that."

"Now, what does the mob do? Hang us in effigy? Denounce us in Commons? Hell, no. They vote for us. What kind of a mob is that?"

"And when they're not voting about us, they're reading about us. That book, The Rothschilds. Top of the best-seller list for months. That book paraded the palaces and the conspicuous consumption of the Rothschilds in four countries. Did you know there had been 34 books about the Rothschilds before that one? No one bought them before. Suddenly all the world wants to read about us. Why?"

"Before that there was that awful novel, The Carpetbaggers, a sort of thinly-disguised life of Howard Hughes. Set on the top of the best-seller lists for months and months. Now they're making a movie of it."

Almost turned me against wealth, that book.

"Remember back when people wrote books like The Grapes of Wrath about Oldies? Or Tobacco Road? All about poor people. You'd go to them in the Rolls and feel terribly sorry for all those poor people starving and very happy you weren't one of them."

"Then you'd leave the theatre and there'd be a crowd of poor folk staring at you with envy and hatred in their eyes. It made a rich man feel distinctive. But they don't write books like that any more."

"I hear Holiday is following up its success on the Rothschilds by doing a book on the Krupps. Imagine! Making lovable old millionaires out of the Krupps. What in hell do you want?"

"This last was to the footman who had entered during this diatribe. 'There's a delegation to see you, sir,' said the footman. 'They wanted to know if you're interested...'"

"Turn the dogs on them!" roared the middle-aged millionaire. "Turn them out! Get me my horsewhip!" His grandfather would have been proud of him.

SHEILAH GRAHAM in London

More Heads Will Roll

LONDON (NANA)—Douglas Fairbanks Jr. has been out of the public eye since "Mandy" insisted on mentioning his name in the Christmas Keeler-Dr. Stephen Ward case. Nothing has been said against Doug, of course, and I hope for his royal aspirations' sake that nothing is... One thing is sure from all the whispering, more famous heads are going to roll before every witness has told his story, in person and on tape... Miss Keeler, by the way, will appear in the Hampstead magistrates court this week charged with two offenses, both minor motoring misdemeanors. And among the three magistrates sitting, one is called Doctor Ward. Another is Lady Fugh, mother of Lord Astor's wife, and I don't have to tell you that his lordship is one of the other big names mentioned in the case.

We can't let a London day go by without mentioning Elizabeth Taylor. As I thought, she has refused to make The Sandpiper for Willis Wyler in Hollywood. She had been promised she could make it in Mexico at the time Richard Widmark will be there starring in Night of the Iguana. She will not go to Mexico and as of now the picture has been shelved... Mr. Wyler has plenty to do: The Sound of Music and later on the movie version of The Time of the Butterflies, which Laurence Harvey does as a play on Broadway.

It takes a top star like Anne Bancroft to be willing to test for a part she wants. Anne flew into London last week, she told me, to test for director Jack Clayton's The Pumpkin Eater. Clayton was offered the chance of getting Ava Gardner for the part, which is that of a youngish middle-aged woman, but he didn't believe she was right. Anne won an Oscar in April for The Miracle Worker. I would bet she will come through with the test with flying colors... The two men's roles will probably be played by Stewart Granger and James Mason.

Sophia Loren and Gina Lollobrigida, who have made a point of never meeting, almost did recently in Madrid. Sophia completed her role in Sam Bronston's Fall of the Roman Empire just one day before Gina's called on Sam to chat about a future film. Next for Gina, Woman of Straw, co-starring with Sean "James Bond" Connery on the Island of Majorca. I'm afraid to say I hope to visit her there, because every time I plan to, something happens to bring me back to America.

One of Ava Gardner's former boyfriends, Mario Cabre, ex-bullfighter-turned-poet handled the visiting stars at the San Sebastian film festival with such charm and tact that he will be repeating next year at the annual Baque affair.

I said hello to Walter Mirisch at Crookford's fashionable gambling establishment just before he took off for Moscow with his wife for the film festival there. Mr. Mirisch is showing three films, he told me with pride, all good ones: The Great Escape, West Side Story and Some Like It Hot. What a pity that Marilyn Monroe is dead and unable to appear with this picture.

Martine Dietrich was superb, singing. Where Have All the Flowers Gone? on BBC television, piped from Düsseldorf, Germany. I thought she looked nervous when she made her entrance, then bowing almost to the ground.

There have been some incidents in the past from German audiences who resented her appearances for allied troops in France during the last war. The thunder of applause reassured her. And the non-stop applause at the end obviously delighted her. The British reviews will make her still happier. What a face and what a figure! And she has never given a better performance.

$176,000 Bull A Ferdinand?

BELFAST (AP)—The suspicion is growing that the world's most expensive bull may turn out to be a bum steer.

Lindertis Evulse, an 18-month-old Aberdeen Angus, was bought by an American syndicate in Scotland last February for the record price of $176,000. He has been held at a quarantine station in Northern Ireland since then awaiting trans-shipment to Black Watch Farm, in Fishkill, N.Y.

To while away the time, he was introduced to six attractive heifers. So far there's no sign of the pater of tiny hooves.

"I understand the Americans are getting very worried," said William Spiers, chief livestock officer at the quarantine station.

"I am still confident that he will turn out all right," said Sir Torquill Munro, the Scottish breeder who sold the bull. He put the trouble down to youth and inexperience.

Representatives of the American syndicate said they have Lindertis insured in case he fails to deliver.

Norris Cuts Loose

'Banks Out of Mould
Of Capones'

OTTAWA (CP)—"Capable, decisive, egocentric, intolerant and ruthless."

"He is of the stuff of the Capones and the Hoffas of whom the dictators throughout history, from the earliest times to the totalitarians Hitler and Stalin, are prototypes."

"He is a bully, cruel, dishonest, greedy, power-hungry, contemptuous of the law."

The words are from the report of Mr. Justice T. G. Norris on his inquiry into shipping strike on the Great Lakes.

TO FOUND UNION

He applies his scathing appraisal to Hal C. Banks, president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.), a bulky waterfront figure who came to Canada in 1949 to break one union and found another. (See story, Page 5.)

Comment, Mr. Banks?

'Are You
Kidding?'

MONTREAL (CP)—Hal C. Banks, president of the Seafarers' International Union, declined to comment Monday on the findings of the Norris report on lake shipping.

Mr. Banks said he will have no comment until he has read the report. He had no indication of when that might be.

Mr. Banks was questioned by reporters as he left a court where he was facing a contempt charge arising out of the SIU's long dispute with the Upper Lakes Shipping Company. The case is to continue today.

STANDINGS GIVEN

The result leaves B.C. Legislature standings at Social Credit 31, NDP 16 and Liberals five.

"The people in the historic riding of Columbia where the hydro-electric policies of the government were under test, criticism and attack gave the Social Credit government a landslide victory," Premier Bennett beamed.

"I am very humble and very pleased that the election gave us this result."

ATTACK CLAIMED
Premier Bennett also praised the Social Credit organization for withstanding "a terrific attack without parallel in the history of the province."

TRENDING JOB

McGavin said he is sure Hall will deal adequately with these points.

"We intend to support Banks right down the line. We believe Banks has done a tremendous job in Canada on behalf of maritime workers."

TO AMERICANS

The Norris commission findings are being brought to the attention of U.S. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz and George Meany, AFL-CIO president. A labor department spokesman said that because of the U.S. railway strike threat, both Meany and Wirtz would be too busy to concentrate on the Canadian problem for some weeks.

Fingered by Fate

Stamp Box Puts Bite
On Ferry Passenger

An American sailor from Seattle probably will never forget his weekend ferry trip to Victoria—after spending the cruise with his finger stuck in a Canadian stamp machine.

Alex "Ding" Bell, a clerk at the Victoria Post Office, helped free the sailor's little finger from the machine after the CPR's Princess Marguerite tied up at her berth here in Inner Harbor on Saturday.

First Time

"If the boat is rolling the right way, we've had a fair amount of trouble with the stamp machines but this is the first time anyone has caught his finger in one of them. I didn't think it could be done," said Mr. Bell.

It seems the sailor had bought some picture post cards to mail to his friends from Victoria and that he couldn't get either the stamps or his quarter back from the machine.

Stayed There

He reached his little finger up the coin return slot, and there it stayed. By the time the ferry arrived in Victoria, anxious crewmen equipped with crowbars and other tools had tried in vain to get the stamp machine open.

Mr. Bell showed the crewmen which screws to remove to get the box apart, and the finger finally slipped out, mighty sore, but apparently undamaged.

To Purser

It was not known whether the sailor ever did get his stamps or his quarter back, but when Mr. Bell left the boat with the stamp machine under his arm the sailor was seen heading for the purser's office.

CITIZENS
WIN

By MIKE GADSBY

Esquimalt council last night turned down the controversial Rockheights zoning bylaw change, but not before some bitter words were exchanged between leaders of the issue's two opposing camps.

In a last-ditch effort to encourage council to approve a bylaw change which would allow construction of a garden apartment development in Rockheights, Hummel and Warren, solicitors for the project's planner, had some biting words for those who attended a public hearing to protest the zone change.

"The question simply appears to be," a letter said, "whether to how to an unruly mob whose leaders quite obviously do not understand the democratic process and at a public meeting were quite unable to attack the proposed bylaw on anything but an emotional level."

Ernest Cassels, who only minutes before had been sworn in as a council member, demanded Hummel and Warren apologize.

"They have no right to call us an unruly mob," said Mr. Cassels. "It sounds like a dictatorship when people have things pushed down their throats the way they have tried to do it to Rockheights residents."

Applause broke out from the Italian scientist Giuseppe Martelli last night was found not guilty of plotting to spy for the Russians. Jury cleared him of all nine counts and he was immediately free by judge at end of tense, 11-day trial in Old Bailey court.

Only Step to Schism
Chinese Warned

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet and Chinese delegates plodded into their second week. Each side apparently was determined to force the other to break them off.

Izvestia elaborated on charges contained in the Soviet Communist party's open letter published Saturday.

It said Red China is only one step from a "schism of the world Communist movement and the creation of a new international Communist centre."

The paper said Peking is trying to find allies among the non-white nations on the basis of "the opposition of the colored peoples and the white race and the demarcation of peoples according to racial, national and continental lines."

It said some nationalist leaders in newly-independent countries are inciting their peoples against the Soviet Union as well as the West by "inculcating them with hostility toward white people."

DRIVE POINT HOME
It said the "modern schismatics"—the Chinese—"are driving home to the peoples of Asia and Africa that the West remains the West and that white people remain white people."

The Soviet Communist party's weekend statement accused the Chinese of attempting to split the Communist world.

TALKS BREAK UP?
The violence of the attack gave rise to a spate of rumors in Western circles that the talks had broken up. Some sources reported the Chinese were packing their bags after being rebuffed on a demand for Premier Khrushchev's resignation.

OTTAWA (CP)—A statement about requests for a second Trans-Canada highway route will be made by Works Minister Deschatelets today or Wednesday, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Monday.

Second Trans-Canada

Gagliardi Ottawa-Bound
For Highway Parley

Highways Minister Gagliardi said Monday he expects to go to Ottawa shortly to discuss the possibility of a second Trans-Canada Highway with federal officials.

He said he had received a letter from federal Works Minister Deschatelets suggesting a conference and had telegraphed his acceptance of the proposal.

He expects the federal minister to set the date. Mr. Gagliardi said he was not optimistic over the possibility that Ottawa would enter into another 50-50 cost-sharing formula with the provinces for a second route.

"But I'll be in there fighting for whatever we can get," he added.

'China of West' to Ignore Test-Ban

PARIS—France will remain the "Communist China" of the West in refusing to accept any nuclear test ban agreement which may be reached by the U.S., Britain and the Soviet Union, an informed source says here.

This was believed to have been the gist of a 45-minute interview between President de Gaulle and Soviet ambassador Sergei Vinogradov on the eve of the Moscow test-ban talks. Vinogradov requested the appointment on his return from Moscow, where the Big Three begin negotiations next week.

"There will be no change in the French position on a nuclear test ban, even if there is an agreement in Moscow," the source said. "Gen. de Gaulle has made it clear that France will accept a test ban only as part of a general disarmament treaty."

The break between the Soviet Union and Red China has strengthened French determination to go ahead with development of a hydrogen bomb.

"Since Moscow can no longer offer the slightest assurance that the Chinese Communists will accept test ban, we feel free to carry on our policy no matter what the other Western nations feel," the source said.

There was a suggestion here

Vinogradov was merely confirming the French position for use as a convenient escape in negotiating with the West.

Soviet test ban negotiators have repeatedly denounced French policy as a ruse to continue Western testing.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin, spokesman for his government in much of last year's frustrating Geneva debates, declared on May 2, 1962:

"The Soviet Union will not sign any treaty to which France is not a party. The Soviet Union cannot let an ally of the United States and the United Kingdom continue testing when others have stopped."

Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's expressed willingness to resume discussion of test suspension, it was wryly suggested here, may stem from the conviction that France is no longer a Western ally.

Four Found

Whistle
Saves
Hikers

HANEY (CP)—Four hikers lost in rugged Garibaldi Park were reported found shortly after noon Monday.

The message was received at civil defense headquarters in this Fraser Valley community. It came in a walkie-talkie report from one of the three ground search parties. All were reported well.

COME HOME

The ground parties had combed dense bush and trackless mountains since Sunday for three University of B.C. doctors and a nurse.

They were Dr. Basil Dunell, 40; Dr. John Coope, 31; Dr. Lionel Harrison and Judith Orr. All were from Vancouver.

SAVED BY WHISTLE

A London baby's whistle led searchers to the four. Dr. Dunell said he always took a whistle with him while hiking and when they realized that searchers would be looking for them they decided to blow it every 15 minutes.

"We were quite excited when there was a reply to the whistle," he said.

Singer's Savvy Success

By JÜRGEN KERN

Bill Roberts came up the hard way, singing on the streets of London, England, for a square meal but now he's a professional folksinger with lots of savvy of his trade.

Because of his rich Tennessee accent, he knows his limitations and sticks to American folksongs: "If I'd sing an Italian song badly, well, what's the use in that?"

His first contact with The Secret's Sunday night audience was climaxed in frenetic applause.

He sings well, that is to say every word is distinct; he plays a clean guitar, avoiding mushy strum effects, and he adds a "huarp" to his repertoire.

A huarp, as he spells it, is a harmonica which he attaches around his neck, playing it simultaneously with the guitar.

Bill Roberts believes interest in folk music will shift, but not dwindle.

"I'm somewhere in the middle between purists and the folksingers who commercialize their styles. I wouldn't, couldn't sing and play like Leadbelly. I play his songs my way ..."

A smiling Premier Bennett had breakfast Monday in Vancouver with senior executives of B.C. Hydro and Power Authority and representatives of the leading investment and banking houses of the province.

He handed over to the financial people for distribution an issue of $50,000,000 parity bonds, to mature Aug. 15, 1967 with a coupon rate of five per cent in the name of the Hydro Authority. They are to replace $25,000,000 B.C. Hydro bonds which fall due Aug. 15, 1963, and since last July have been paying an annual return of 5 1/2 per cent.

The return to the five per cent rate was anticipated because of the greater availability of short term money than a year ago when Mr. Bennett raised the rate on all the B.C. parity bonds from five to 5 1/2 per cent.

OTHER TALKING

Mr. Bennett also explained that, although the new issue would raise the outstanding B.C. parity bonds to $25,000,000 (over the ceiling of $22,000,000), he intended to redeem sufficient of the outstanding B.C. Electric parity bonds at an early date to get back under the ceiling.

Another interesting feature of the new issue is that Mr. Bennett has asked the underwriters to keep individual allotments to a maximum of $25,000, although he stated he had no intention of trying to limit holdings acquired in the secondary market.

SELL EASILY

Dealers expressed the view the new bonds would sell easily.

They should. Only a few weeks ago Manitoba sold $10,000,000 savings bonds with 4 1/2 per cent interest rate.

Fourth quarter earnings were $965,000 (22 cents). Sales for the year were $36,028,000 against $35,400,000 in the previous year.

Breeze Helps Sailing Race

DUNCAN — A stiff breeze toward the end of the Maple Bay Yacht Club North Reef handicap sailing race Sunday highlighted the event won by the Lightning Zet with John King.

Third place was taken by the six-metre sloop Alana, skippered by Vic Palmer. The event started at 10 a.m., and the Alana was the first to cross the finish line. The race ended shortly after 3 p.m.

Also sponsored by the Maple Bay Yacht Club were the annual water sports Sunday.

Good Citizen Nominations Sought

The call went out yesterday for nominations for Greater Victoria's 1963 Good Citizen award.

From among the expected hundreds of recommendations a special committee will carefully select its choice for the award.

Presentation of the Good Citizen award, sponsored by Post No. 1 Victoria of the Native Sons of B.C., will be made late in August.

Recipients of the award in recent years include Mrs. E. E. Harper, convener of a free food stall for needy families, 1962; Judge J. B. Clearhouse, prominent in Canadian citizenship and University of Victoria activities, 1961; former B.C. Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, 1960; and popular naturalist Freeman King, 1959.

Residents throughout Greater Victoria are invited to mail letters nominating any person they believe has displayed the best principles of good citizenship, a Native Sons spokesman said yesterday.

Nominations should be mailed to the group's secretary, Mr. R. H. Hicock, 609 Trutch Street, Victoria, B.C., and letters must state why the person nominated should get the award, he said.

Garden Shut Few Hours

Normally open to the public, the grounds of Government House will be closed from noon Wednesday to allow caterers to make preparations for the annual garden party given by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes and Mrs. Pearkes later that afternoon.

Ferry Toll

RCMP Probe

Winds Up

Results of an RCMP investigation of alleged Nanaimo ferry fare thefts will land in the lap of the provincial government this week.

On the basis of the findings, the government is expected to decide whether to lay charges.

An RCMP investigator was wrapping up his report on the case yesterday and an officer said his information will be handed over to the attorney-general's department.

RCMP were called into the case by the attorney-general's department one week ago after the Colonist broke the story of alleged thefts at the Nanaimo terminal of the government ferry service.

OFFICIAL FIRED

Former Nanaimo terminal manager Jack Washer, 42, said he had been dismissed from his job for lack of supervision after toll authority investigators obtained a confession of toll thefts from a collector.

He claimed the collector was being protected against theft charges because he came from a prominent Nanaimo family.

RCMP CALLED IN

Four days after Washer complained that the investigation by toll authority security personnel was highly irregular, the government asked the RCMP to enter the case.

RCMP were reported double-checking the work of the toll authority investigators.

Boats—Lost, Found

NANAIMO—The customs department here is looking for five boats and four boat owners.

J. G. Chilton, receiver of wrecks, has four boats without owners: the Sea Wolf, an eight-foot plywood punt; a 16-foot aluminum Cadillac; a 16-foot Springbok aluminum boat and a 16-foot plywood boat bearing the initials M.

Reported lost is the small Fry, eight-foot plywood boat, near Thetis Island; a green eight-foot wooden boat, near Silva Bay, a blue eight-foot clinker, near Departure Bay; the E. Dreamboat, eight-foot fiberglass white boat, between Nanossee Bay and Nanaimo, and a 12-foot wooden climber, grey with red trim, near Parksville.

In Alberni Inlet

City Fisherman Escapes Sinking

ALBERNI—Ross Murray of Victoria had a narrow escape when his troller, Early Spring, capsized in Alberni Inlet Sunday evening as he headed out for west coast fishing grounds from Port Alberni.

Other fishing vessels, including Jeff Phillips' Juju I, the Karen N, and the Prince Rupert-registered Swallow—called by radio by Mr. Murray as his boat heeled over and took water—came to the rescue.

Lines were put aboard the sinking boat, and it was hauled up against the rocks near Hardy Creek and made fast for the night.

The Early Spring was brought by Stone Bros. tug to Port Alberni for repairs.

Near Regina

Island Boy Killed

REGINA (CP)—Four-year-old Brian Dale Nurnberg, of Port Alberni, was among three persons killed Monday in a car-truck collision at a level crossing on the Trans-Canada Highway one mile west of here.

The boy's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Clifton of Del Bonita, Alta., were also reported dead.

FAIR CONDITION

Irvin Nurnberg, father of the dead boy, was in fair condition in hospital here Monday night. Police said he was driving the car.

The two-engine freight train, heading south out of Regina, dragged the car about 500 feet down the tracks after the collision.

An inquest was opened but was adjourned indefinitely.

SECOND ACCIDENT

The accident was the second on the Trans-Canada Highway west of Regina recently. A man and two girls from B.C. were killed in a car-truck collision seven miles west of here June 8.

Mr. Nurnberg is a faller with MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. logging division at Franklin River.

Trollers Seek Way to Sea

By HARVEY SHEPHERD

Angry independent troller fishermen plan to seek a way to go fishing despite a union fishermen's strike which this weekend halted virtually all B.C. coast commercial fishing, union and non-union.

Officials of the Pacific Trollers' Association will attempt to find a market for their fish, likely in the U.S. They will report to Victoria Independent trollers at a meeting tonight.

One independent troller Monday said he plans to go fishing this week whatever the outcome of tonight's meeting and if U.S. markets are not available he will try to outlast the strike.

Trollers interviewed Monday at Victoria's Fishermen's Wharf said they feel it is unfair of the United Fishermen's and Allied Workers' Union to attempt to force them to join the strike which the union's salmon net fishermen began Saturday noon.

They said they are not in the union and the fish they catch—mainly spring and coho salmon for the fresh fish trade—are different from the humpback (pink) and sockeye salmon mainly caught by the net fishermen for canning.

Won't Strikebreak

By the same token, they said, they will not be strikebreakers if they do go fishing, and in fact will throw back into the sea any canning variety salmon they do happen to catch.

Trollers said there are about 3,000 non-union troller fishermen in B.C. who have been immobilized by the strike, some 120 of whom work out of Victoria. They generally operate their own boats.

Trollers also complained that the beginning of the strike comes right at the height of the season for troller fishermen, while the height of the season for salmon net fishermen is some two weeks away.

Cost Year's Profit

One troller estimated that a two-week layover would cost each troller about $2,000—approximately his normal profit for the year. The layover would eliminate one of the eight to 10 trips a troller normally makes to sea each season.

Trollers who probably will not fish in the face of the strike are those who work during part of the season at some other job and probably belong to a union there.

The same consideration will probably keep out of operation the "putter fleet" of primarily otherwise employed persons who fish commercially with essentially sport fishing equipment. It has been estimated there are some 500 such fishermen in the Victoria-Sooke area.

Processing Rushed

Victoria fish processors Monday were rushing to get fish, processed before an 11 a.m. Wednesday deadline for shore workers to handle fish caught before the Saturday noon deadline. The union said troll salmon, crabs, bottom fish and halibut will be processed if they were caught before midnight Sunday.

Net fishermen struck to support demands for higher prices and better welfare provisions in their contract with the B.C. Fisheries Association. Shore workers have also voted to strike. Tendermen voted by two votes not to, but the union says they will not handle "hot" cargo.

The companies refused to raise prices for salmon this year and proposed a price cut for two varieties.

Troller heads into Victoria Fishermen's Wharf to tie up with others idled by strike by United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (Ind.). Strike has virtually halted operations by troller fleet, although trollers are run by independent operators who do not belong to union.

Independent troller fishermen mull over what to do about strike by United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union. From left at Victoria Fishermen's Wharf are Russ Cranholme, Pacific Trollers' Association president Richard Williams, Carl Lassau, O. J. Powell, Dick Winslow and Louis Heggelund.—(Bud Kinman).

Barbara is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Findlay, of Qualicum Beach and graduated from Qualicum Beach high school in June.

She was the winner of the Parkville and District Credit Union scholarship and the school citizenship award, and was class valedictorian.

She is interested in public speaking and journalism, but plans to make education her career, and will continue her studies at University of B.C. this fall.

She was sponsored in the beauty contest by Parkville and District Fish and Game Club and will enter the Miss PNE contest in August.

Newcastle Island Has Busy Sunday

NANAIMO—More than 700 visitors flocked to Newcastle Island Sunday.

Four major group picnics took advantage of the recreational facilities on the provincially developed island.

Picnics were held by the Eagles Club, The Legion, Wellington Community Association and the Southend Athletic Club.

Both ferries were in operation most of the day. Capt. H. C. R. Davis reported children in small boats create a problem on busy weekends.

He complained children paddling around the stern of the ferries were in danger as they cannot be seen from the ship. The government floats were full with visiting craft from the United States.

Comment, Mr. Banks?

'Are You Kidding?'

MONTREAL (CP)—Hal C. Banks, president of the Seafarers' International Union, declined to comment Monday on the findings of the Norris report on lake shipping.

Mr. Banks said he will have no comment until he has read the report. He had no indication of when that might be.

Four Found Whistle Saves Hikers

HANEY (CP)—Four hikers lost in rugged Garibaldi Park were reported found shortly after noon Monday.

The message was received at civil defence headquarters in this Fraser Valley community. It came in a walkie-talkie report from one of the three ground search parties. All were reported well.

COMB BURN

The ground parties had combed dense bush and trackless mountains since Sunday for three University of B.C. doctors and a nurse.

They were Dr. Basil Dunell, 40, Dr. John Coope, 31, Dr. Lionel Harrison and Judith Orr. All were from Vancouver.

SAVED BY WHISTLE

A London bobby's whistle led searchers to the four.

Dr. Dunell said he always took a whistle with him while hiking and when they realized that searchers would be looking for them they decided to blow it every 15 minutes.

"We were quite excited when there was a reply to the whistle," he said.

Stamp Box Puts Bite On Sailor

An American sailor from Seattle probably will never forget his weekend ferry trip to Victoria—after spending the cruise with his finger stuck in a Canadian stamp machine.

Alex "Ding" Bell, a clerk at the Victoria Post Office, helped free the sailor's little finger from the machine after the CPR's Princess Marguerite tied up at her berth here in Inner Harbor on Saturday.

First Time

"If the boat is rolling the right way, we've had a fair amount of trouble with the stamp machines but this is the first time anyone has caught his finger in one of them. I didn't think it could be done," said Mr. Bell.

It seems the sailor had bought some picture post cards to mail to his friends from Victoria and that he couldn't get either the stamps or his quarter back from the machine.

Stayed There

He reached his little finger up the coin return slot, and there it stayed. By the time the ferry arrived in Victoria, anxious crewmen equipped with crowbars and other tools had tried in vain to get the stamp machine open.

Mr. Bell showed the crewmen which screws to remove to get the box apart, and the finger finally slipped out, slightly sore, but apparently undamaged.

To Purser

It was not known whether the sailor ever did get his stamps or his quarter back, but when Mr. Bell left the boat with the stamp machine under his arm the sailor was seen heading for the purser's office.

TREMENDOUS JOB

McGavin said he is sure Hall will deal adequately with these points.

"We intend to support Banks right down the line. We believe Banks has done a tremendous job in Canada on behalf of maritime workers."

TO AMERICANS

The Norris commission findings are being brought to the attention of U.S. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz and George Meany, AFL-CIO president. A labor department spokesman said that because of the U.S. railway strike threat, both Meany and Wirtz would be too busy to concentrate on the Canadian problem for some weeks.

SOCIAL CREDIT WINS

Social Credit won about 40 per cent of the votes Monday when railway telegrapher Frank Greenwood, 42, retained the sparsely-settled Columbia riding for the government in a provincial election.

Premier Bennett called it a "landslide victory" but an NDP member of Parliament in Ottawa issued charges of intimidation during the campaign.

With 23 of the 26 polls counted, Mr. Greenwood had 1,087 votes, Dr. Alvin Trott of the Progressive Conservatives 637, Liberal candidate Robert Keenleyside 623 and Robert Harris of the NDP 578. A total of 4,422 voters was eligible.

STANDINGS GIVEN

The result leaves B.C. Legislature standings at Social Credit 31, NDP 16 and Liberals five.

"The people in the historic riding of Columbia where the hydro-electric policies of the government were under test, criticism and attack gave the Social Credit government a landslide victory," Premier Bennett beamed.

"I am very humble and very pleased that the election gave us this result."

Premier Bennett also praised the Social Credit organization for withstanding "a terrific attack without parallel in the history of the province."

Esquimalt Citizens Win Fight

By MIKE GADSEY

Esquimalt council last night turned down the controversial Rockheights zoning bylaw change, but not before some bitter words were exchanged between leaders of the issue's two opposing camps.

In a last-ditch effort to encourage council to approve a bylaw change which would allow construction of a garden apartment development in Rockheights, Hummel and Warren, solicitors for the project's planner, had some biting words for those who attended a public hearing to protest the zone change.

"The question simply appears to be," a letter said, "whether to how to an unruly mob whose leaders quite obviously do not understand the democratic process and at a public meeting were quite unable to attack the proposed bylaw on anything but an emotional level."

Ernest Cassels, who only minutes before had been sworn in as a council member, demanded Hummel and Warren apologize.

"They have no right to call us an unruly mob," said Mr. Cassels. "It sounds like a dictatorship when people have things pushed down their throats the way they have tried to do it to Rockheights residents."

Only Step to Schism Chinese Warned

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union has charged Red China with trying to set up a new centre of international communism—long headquartered in the Kremlin—of setting the colored races against the white.

The bitter accusations were printed in the government newspaper Izvestia Monday as the peace talks between Soviet and Chinese delegates plodded into their second week. Each side apparently was determined to force the other to break them off.

charges contained in the Soviet Communist party's open letter published Saturday.

It said Red China is only one step from a "schism of the world Communism movement and the creation of a new international Communist centre."

The paper said Peking is trying to find allies among the non-white nations on the basis of "the opposition of the colored peoples and the white race and the demarcation of peoples according to racial, national and continental lines."

It said some nationalist leaders in newly-independent countries are inciting their peoples against the Soviet Union as well as the West by "inculcating them with hostility toward white people."

It said the "modern schismatics"—the Chinese—"are driving home to the peoples of Asia and Africa that the West remains the West and that white people remain white people."

The Soviet Communist party's weekend statement accused the Chinese of attempting to split the Communist world.

TALKS BREAK UP?

The violence of the attack gave rise to a spate of rumors in Western circles that the talks had broken up. Some sources reported the Chinese were packing their bags after being rebuffed on a demand for Premier Khrushchev's resignation.

Second Trans-Canada

Gagliardi Ottawa-Bound For Highway Parley

Highways Minister Gagliardi said Monday he expects to go to Ottawa shortly to discuss the possibility of a second Trans-Canada Highway with federal officials.

He said he had received a letter from federal Works Minister Deschatelets suggesting a conference and had telegraphed his acceptance of the proposal.

He expects the federal minister to set the date. Mr. Gagliardi said he was not optimistic over the possibility that Ottawa would enter into another 50-50 cost-sharing formula with the provinces for a second route.

"But I'll be in there fighting for whatever we can get," he added.

OTTAWA (CP)—A statement about requests for a second Trans-Canada highway route will be made by Works Minister Deschatelets today or Wednesday, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Monday.

He's Tickled Pink But She Sees Red

LONDON (Reuters)—The wife of an army sergeant was granted a divorce Monday after she told a court her husband made her tickle his feet almost every night for hours at a time.

The judge said the husband, Sgt. Robert Lines, 25, threatened not to talk to his 18-year-old wife, Joan, unless she continued to tickle him.

Lines began his demands one week after the marriage. Sometimes he required his young wife also to tickle the top of his head and his back.

The judge granted Mrs. Lines a divorce on the grounds of cruelty.

'China of West' to Ignore Test-Ban

PARIS—France will remain the "Communist China" of the West in refusing to accept any nuclear test ban agreement which may be reached by the U.S., Britain and the Soviet Union, an informed source says here. (See story Page 3.)

This was believed to have been the gist of a 45-minute interview between President de Gaulle and Soviet ambassador Sergei Vinogradov on the eve of the Moscow test-ban talks. Vinogradov requested the appointment on his return from Moscow, where the Big Three began negotiations Monday.

"There will be no change in the French position on a nuclear test ban, even if there is an agreement in Moscow," the source said. "Gen. de Gaulle has made it clear that France will accept a test ban only as part of a general disarmament treaty."

The break between the Soviet Union and Red China has strengthened French determination to go ahead with development of a hydrogen bomb.

"Since Moscow can no longer offer the slightest assurance that the Chinese Communists will accept test ban, we feel free to carry on our policy no matter what the other Western nations feel," the source said.

There was a suggestion here

Vinogradov was merely confirming the French position for use as a convenient escape in negotiating with the West.

Soviet test ban negotiators have repeatedly denounced French policy as a ruse to continue Western testing.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin, spokesman for his government in much of last year's frustrating Geneva debates, declared on May 9, 1962:

"The Soviet Union will not sign any treaty to which France is not a party. The Soviet Union cannot let an ally of the United States and the United Kingdom continue testing when others have stopped."

Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's expressed willingness to resume discussion of test suspension. It was widely suggested here, may stem from the conviction that France is no longer a Western ally.
